Communist Party Called Russian "Fifth Column"

Budenz Has "Every Reason To Believe" Woman's Spy Story

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP) — A "considerable" Red fifth column has wormed its way into the United States government, Senate investigators were told today by Louis Budenz, former Communist editor.

And while some Communists are "confused" enough to believe their loyalty is to the United States, he went on, the majority of party members would stand with Russia in case of war.

The party aim, Budenz asserted, is to serve Moscow's purpose of world domination, including "dominance of the Soviet government of Russia over the United States." The party itself, he said, is a Soviet "fifth column."

Budenz gave that sweeping outline of Communist goals and tactics in testimony to a Senate expenditures subcommittee. He said he had "every reason to believe" a sensational espionage story previously told to the committee by Miss Elizabeth Bentley.

Miss Bentley, telling of wartime activities as a Soviet secret agent, named dozens of United States officials and employes, all the way to the White House, as sources of a flood of secret information she said she collected.

Moment Of Drama

Budenz furnished a moment of drama in today's hearing when he turned in the witness chair to identify the 40-year-old Vassar graduate as a woman he knew as a trusted Russian agent.

He said she was so introduced to him by the late Jacob Golos. Miss Bentley rose and smiled acknowledgement of the identification. She has identified Golos, with whom she said she was in love, as a central cog in the Soviet espionage machine in America.

Today Budenz added another line to the Golos picture by naming him as head of a Conumunist Party control commission. That agency's function, he said, is keeping party members in line and administering discipline.

But Golos' group, Budenz went on, was only one of a number operating in this country. And he said they were "vigilant" at getting members into government posts.

Asked directly by Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.), chairman of the subcommittee, whether the Reds are penetrating government, Budenz replied:

Washington Unit "Active"

"I know they were when I was active. They have a number of methods. One is by their unit here in Washington seeing that people get into government. This unit has been very vigilant in that."

At another point in his long testimony Budenz asserted:

"There was considerable penetration into the government. I wouldn't want to become panicky and say it was overwhelming, but it was considerable."

The witness, one-time editor of the Communist newspaper Daily Worker who now teaches economics at Fordham University in New York, said party members are subject to a sort of discipline incomprehensible to the American mind.

"The Communist Party has a slogan," he said. "It is, 'You can never resign voluntarily from the party, you must always be expelled.'"

That discipline, he said, is administered by every measure from blackmail for the reluctant to char-

THIRD SET-- Mrs. Charles E. Summers, 30, Akron, Ohio, is shown with the third set of twins born to her in the last 27 months. The wife of a 32-year-old chemical company worker, Mrs. Summers met her husband while both were stationed in the Army in New Guinea.

Landlady Sleeps In Tub, Bathless Tenants Charge

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2—(AP)—Nine rooming house tenants who claim they need a bath filed suit today because, they alleged, their landlady insisted on sleeping in the tub.

The Superior Court complaint, asking $50,000 damages, charged also the landlady, Mrs. June Gilbert, levied rents in excess of OPA ceilings in addition to sleeping in the porcelain bedstead when they wanted to perform their ablutions.

U. S. Says Russia Balks Arms Cut

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP) —The United States accused Russia today of obstructing United Nations attempts to reduce and regulate world arms. Russia heatedly replied that the United States and Britain had sabotaged the arms-cutting program.

The flareup between Frederick H. Osborn, United States delegate, and Jakob A. Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, came at an open meeting of the United Nations Commission for Conventional Armaments. It was the latest and apparently the most intense clash between United States and Soviet delegates in a long series of wordy arguments in the commission.

The commission decided to meet at 9 a. m. EST, next Monday as a working committee. Malik promised he will reply to Osborn in full at that time.

The commission virtually has given up efforts to write an arms regulation convention because Russia and the Western Powers cannot agree.

Britain Offers $400,000 Toward Arab Relief Fund

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 2—(AP)—Britain offered $400,000 today toward a relief fund for 300,000 Arab refugees in the Middle East.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, British delegate, told the United Nations Security Council that it should ask the International Red Cross to send a small party to Palestine and the Middle East to examine the scope of the refugee problem.

He said it is almost certain the Red Cross would find additional money is needed to care for the Arabs.

Legislation Would Boost Postal Workers' Salaries

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP) — Legislation to increase the pay of most post office workers $350 a year and to set up a 35-hour work week was introduced today by Sen. Langer (R-ND) and Johnston (D-SC).

Langer said in a statement he hopes the measure will be studied with the view of action early next year.

He said recent salary legislation did not provide adequate raises for postal employes.

The bill would provide 20 per cent extra, instead of the present 10 per cent, for night work. It also would provide an annual uniform allowance for letter carriers, who now buy their own uniforms.

Dixie Filibuster Goes On As Move To Check It Fails

"Cloture" Proposal Ruled Out Of Order

WASHINGTON, Aug 2 (AP)—Filibustering Dixie senators won a major round today in their effort to talk the anti-poll tax bill to death.

The presiding officer, Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich) decided that an effort to curb the debate was in conflict with Senate rules, and so the talkathon continued.

It was highly doubtful whether the Senate would reach a vote at this extra session on the bill to outlaw the poll tax as a qualification for voting.

The situation was this:

Last Wednesday, Sen. Wherry (R-Neb) made a motion to take up the bill, which is part of President Truman's civil rights program.

Southerners immediately started a filibuster against the motion, and since then the Senate has been tied up in knots.

"Cloture" Proposal Out Of Order

Today Wherry proposed that the Senate invoke "cloture," which would limit each senator to one hour's talk. Wherry's proposal would have required a two thirds vote to become effective.

But it never got to a vote. Vandenberg ruled it out of order.

He did so reluctantly, he said, because he personally favors the anti-poll tax bill. Moreover, he added, Senate rules should permit a curb on debate in such cases. But the fact is, he declared, that they do not.

He said it seemed plain to him that when the Senate adopted its rules about cloture in 1917, it meant that they should apply to pending bills, not to pending motions.

And the matter pending before the Senate today was a motion—to take up the anti-poll tax bill—and not a bill.

"In the final analysis," Vandenberg said, "the Senate has no effective cloture rules at all."

Taft Appeals Ruling

A few senators "have it in their power to prevent Senate action on anything."

Vandenberg invited any senator to appeal his ruling to the chamber at large. Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) immediately did so.

But Sen. Robertson (D - Va) launched a speech against Taft's appeal.

He said passage of the poll tax bill would help submerge the sovereignty of the states in an overpowering central government.

The bill, he said, is unconstitutional, unnecessary and undesirable.

Only seven states now require their people to pay the tax in order to vote, he said, and in several of these states movements are underway to repeal the levy.

Two B-29s Reach Tokyo On Globe-Girdling Flight

TOKYO, Tuesday, Aug. 3 (AP)—Two B-29 bombers landed this morning at Yokota airfield, 20 miles west of Tokyo, on their around-the-world flight. They started on July 22 from Tucson, Ariz.

Their 10-hour flight from Manila ended at 9:04 and 9:29 a. m. (7:04 and 7:29 p. m. Monday, EST). The planes will remain at Yokota until 9 a. m. tomorrow when they are scheduled to take off for Anchorage, Alaska.

Three planes began the long training flight from Arizona, but one crashed at Aden last week.

Fortune Found In Hovel Occupied By Late Recluse

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 2—(AP)—Police began a methodical check today of a junk-crammed house rented by a 67-year-old recluse who died of starvation although she had a fortune of over $100,000 hidden away.

Amid stacks of newspapers, piles of furniture and crates of odds and ends, City Attorney George P. Meister and Police Sgt. John Parkerson sought a clue to some relative of Mrs. Julia Kearney.

A search of her shabby, one-story hovel already has uncovered more than $20,000 in cash and $80,000 in negotiable bonds and securities.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Kearney, who lived alone, collapsed on her weed-covered front yard. She was removed to a hospital where doctors found she was suffering from malnutrition. She died last Thursday.

A nurse making a routine check of the dead woman's belongings found $1,600 in cash in her purse and three diamond rings sewed to her underclothing.

When police got a court order to enter her house in hope of finding a clue to some next of kin, they located the fortune.

A check showed she slept on an untidy mattress. Clothing lay littered over floors strewn with empty tin cans and egg shells.

One room was filled to the ceiling with old furniture, bolts of cloth, crates of empty paper bags, wooden trunks and heaps of rags.

Neighbors who described her as "very secretive and very stingy," said when she went shopping she hitch-hiked to save bus fare.

A 15-year-old boy said he helped her carry old papers from the house about a year ago but quit when she hinted she might charge him for the papers.

Ohio Governor Orders Troops To Univis Plant

Will Reopen Today; Five Unionists Found Guilty Of Contempt

DAYTON, O., Aug. 2 (AP) — Gov. Thomas J. Herbert late today ordered the Ohio National Guard to move in and "maintain law and order" at the Univis Lens Company plant, scene of strike disorders.

Company officials immediately announced plans to reopen the plant tomorrow morning.

The Governor accused the CIO United Electrical Workers local at the plant of "a complete breach of good faith" in not ending a 90-day strike. He said it was imperative that the state send in troops.

Not to do so, Herbert added in a formal statement, would "mean submission to the dictates of a group of men who seem determined to pursue a course of violations of our laws" and in defiance of court orders.

Union Plans Mass Picketing

As a showdown neared, the union appealed to all Dayton unions to mass pickets at the plant entrance at 6:30 a. m. (EST) tomorrow.

Meanwhile, five UE officials and pickets were found guilty of contempt for ignoring a court order to remain away from the plant. Common Pleas Judge Paul T. Klapp warned them they would be jailed immediately if they reappeared there.

Gov. Herbert, frustrated in efforts to settle the strike which has produced picket-line fighting and use of tear gas by police, responded late today to a call for help from Mayor Louis Lohrey and Sheriff Ben Smith.

Reviewing his efforts to end the strike, and failure of the strikers to ratify a union-management agreement announced last night, Herbert declared:

"It is about time that the public knows the Communistic pattern followed in the conduct of this dispute."

Agreement "Repudiated"

Gov. Herbert said he left Dayton last night with an agreement to terminate the strike signed by UE officials, then "this morning I learned that this agreement was repudiated."

A group of 225 striking workers refused to ratify the settlement approved by their leaders. The vote was announced as unanimous.

The Governor asserted it was "quite apparent" that a majority of Univis employes "are desperately anxious to work at their jobs without hindrance or violence."

Then, announcing that he was directing Adjt. Gen. Chester W. Goble to send in a detachment of National Guardsmen, the Governor remarked:

"I deeply regret that this action has been forced upon us. I ask the co-operation of all citizens in this emergency."

ALHAMBRA, Calif., Aug. 2—(AP)—The death of William Calvin Morgan, 79, better known as Bronco Bill, was disclosed today.

A colorful figure of the old west, Morgan won the world's championship for breaking wild horses at the Chicago World Fair in 1893.

At one time he performed as a marksman and trick rider with Buffalo Bill's wild west show and later toured the country with a show of his own.

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Aug. 2 (AP) —More than 1,000 boys and girls were registered here today for the 26th annual 4-H Club Week on the campus of the University of Maryland.

The affair is being held in connection with the National 4-H Club Week.

Latest farm techniques will be taught to boys attending the sessions. The girls will get instructions on dressmaking and other domestic features of farm life.

U. S. Communist Leader Praises Wallace's Group

Foster Lashes Out At GOP And Demos

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—William Z. Foster, national Communist Party chairman, tonight praised Henry A. Wallace's party and said "a vote for either Truman or Dewey means a vote for eventual Fascism or war."

"They are brazen liars who charge that the Communist Party is trying to dominate the new party or to claim the credit for its formation," Foster asserted in a speech prepared for a rally at Madison Square Garden.

The rally opened the 14th national convention of the Communist party. It will continue through Thursday.

The party leader said the Democratic and Republican Parties "are both dominated by Wall Street, their candidates and platforms were dictated by big business, and both are committed to American imperialism's policy of world conquest x x x.

Wallace's Party Praised

"The new Progressive Party offers the opportunity for the forces fighting for peace and against inflation and Fascism, to organize and express their strength.

"It's national ticket, Wallace and Taylor, will rally hosts of workers, negroes, farmers, veterans, women, youth, intellectuals, and other patriotic Americans who are determined that our people shall not be butchered for the profit and glory of Wall Street."

Foster declared "the Progressive Party is in no sense a Communist Party."

The Communists have many points of difference with the Wallace group, he said, explaining:

"The most important is that while many leaders in the Progressive Party believe that the badly-crippled world capitalist system can be saved and transformed into 'progressive capitalism,' we Marxist-Leninists do not. Capitalism historically is on its way off the world stage."

Indicted Two Weeks Ago

Foster said "the Trumans, Deweys, Dulles', Hoovers, and Marshalls, Vandenbergs and other men of the trusts who are running our government could readily secure a democratic agreement with the

Senate Rejects 58-13, Resolution To Adjourn Aug. 4

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—(AP) —The Senate late today voted down, 58 to 13, a resolution to adjourn the special congressional session August 4.

The resolution was offered by Sen. Johnson (D-SC). It gathered support only from his Dixie colleagues while northern Democrats and Republicans joined forces to defeat it.

Planes Like One Missing With 52 Aboard Grounded

PARIS, Aug. 2—(AP)—Air France said tonight it was forced to concede that only some mechanical defect could explain the disappearance of its huge flying boat which is missing over the South Atlantic with 52 persons aboard.

Therefore, the air line officials said, they were grounding all seaplanes of that type—the 73-ton, six engine Latecoere 631—pending an exhaustive study of the plane.

Bad weather tonight hampered rescue ships and planes which have been searching the ocean since the giant airliner vanished nearly two days ago. It failed to arrive at Port Etienne, Mauritania, West Africa, after taking off from Martinique in the French West Indies.

The last radio report from the missing plane said all was well. Air France said since the weather was favorable, it was unreasonable to assume the plane had been bothered by storms.

The air line also said it was unlikely that engine trouble was to blame since the giant plane is capable of flying on only four of its six motors. Officials said the plane was equipped with Wright engines and that its pilot had more than 1,800,000 flight miles to his credit.

Fusee-Carrying Balloon Sets Indianapolis Agog

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 2 (AP)—The sparkling "ball of fire" that set Indianapolis agog last night was just what the doctor ordered—a surplus Army balloon, with a railroad fusee attached.

Lowell Nussbaum, Indianapolis Star columnist, said Dr. Howard Aldrich told him, "Sure I sent it up. I never dreamed it would cause so much excitement."

The physician said he bought several balloons and had been sending them up, mostly in the daytime, with the name and address of his daughter, Alice, 12, attached. He said one landed recently in Dayton, Ohio.

Virginia's 1948 Polio Cases Boosted To 113

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 2 (AP) — Eleven new cases in the first two days of August sent Virginia's 1948 polio total to 113 today.

The rather sudden jump, based on past experience in the state this year, was not regarded by State Health Department officials as any undue cause for alarm. They noted with a degree of hopefulness that Virginia's cases are fairly well scattered and there are no areas of high concentration such as are evident in the central section of epidemic-ridden North Carolina.

Republicans Draft Anti-Inflation Plan, Housing Measure

WASHINGTON, Aug 2 (AP)—The congressional Republican high command today drew the outlines of a GOP anti-inflation program, flatly rejecting most of President Truman's proposals.

Chairman Wolcott (R-Mich), of the House Banking Committee, told reporters he probably would introduce the Republican bill on Wednesday.

The GOP program, in a preliminary stage and not formally announced, was reported to include:

1. Legislation to tighten bank credit by increasing bank reserve requirements.

2. A housing bill that would (A) re-enact the so-called "Title 6" under which the government insures mortgages on new dwellings; (B) legislation giving investors in rental property tax savings by increasing the rate of depreciation of the property; and (C) yield insurance, guaranteeing a profit for investors in large rental properties.

The housing bill, eliminating the controversial federal low-rent housing and slum clearance, passed the House during the regular session and is pending in the Senate.

Credit Curbs Discussed

Mr. Truman has asked for that measure, with the subsidized housing feature back in it, along with price and rationing controls, and a multi-billion dollar excess profits tax.

The Republican program outline was drawn at a meeting of House Speaker Martin, Sen. Taft of Ohio, House Republican Leader Halleck of Indiana, and Wolcott.

They also discussed whether wartime controls on installment buying should be restored. Indications were that no agreement was reached on this subject.

The session was held amid indications that Congress might clean up its extra session work and quit in a few days.

The Truman profits tax bill was sent to the Capitol earlier in the day.

Republican leaders let it be known immediately it has no more chance of enactment than the President's price control.

They were working on an anti-inflation plan of their own. They hoped to get action on this and then adjourn the extra session next week.

Simultaneously, there were these developments on the cost-of-living front:

In Good Humor After Lengthy Kremlin Parley

No Statement Made By Three Diplomats; Crisis Seen Easing

MOSCOW, Aug. 2 (AP)—Envoys of the United States, Britain and France emerged smiling and in good spirits tonight after conferring in the Kremlin with Prime Minister Stalin on the chances of settling East-West differences in Berlin and all Europe.

Their two-hour-and-fifteen-minute meeting was the longest any foreign representatives have ever had with the Russian leader. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov also was present.

The Western Power diplomats left the walled center of the Soviet government at 11:15 p. m. (4:15 p. m., Eastern Standard Time) and hurried to the American Embassy where they immediately went into conference.

At the embassy, the three western envoys—United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau and Frank Roberts, special British representative — had no immediate comment to make on their conversations with the Soviet leader. Obviously in a great hurry and in good humor, they pounded up three flights of stairs to Smith's office without waiting for the elevator.

Tense Situation Eases

Even before their Kremlin visit there were indications of an easing of the tense international situation. Authoritive sources said progress already has been made among the four great powers.

During the night, official reports on the meeting with Stalin will be dispatched to Washington, London and Paris.

As Smith, Roberts and Chataigneau rushed into the embassy, they refused to say anything about their lengthy talk.

All three were smiling and affable. As they hurried into the embassy building, Smith led his two colleagues up the stairway. Correspondents had to follow him partly up the steps before they could stop him. Then, turning and laughing, the United States ambassador said:

"Wait a minute. You can't follow me right into my office. We're having a meeting here tonight, you know."

Other United States, British and French officials already were in the embassy waiting for their chiefs to return from the Kremlin.

Smith told reporters: "Generalissimo Stalin and Mr. Molotov received us all at a meeting."

Top-Level Talks Speculated

Then he added: "There will probably be a communique to that effect tonight. I don't think there will be anything more. I'm sorry, but that's all."

Veteran correspondents who have covered Kremlin meetings for years said tonight's conference was one of the longest they could recall. The most obvious aftermath of the meeting was the good humor the western diplomats were in as they rushed from the Kremlin across Hunter's Square to the United States Embassy. In the short space of a minute and a half they covered the distance from the Kremlin gates to the embassy.

(British diplomatic writers speculated that the meeting with Stalin soon might lead to a conference of Stalin, President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and French Premier Andre Marie.

(A strict official silence was observed by the United States State

Negro Women Denied Admission To U. Of Okla.

NORMAN, Okla., Aug. 2—(AP)—A state court today denied admission to the University of Oklahoma to three negro women. Negro leaders announced they would carry the fight against Oklahoma's racial segration laws again to the United States Supreme court.

One of the three rejected was Mrs. Ada Fisher, Chickasha, who for more than two years has waged a court fight to enter the university law school.

The others were Maudérie Hancock-Wilson, and Helen Maxine Holmes, both of Oklahoma City.

"King" Cole's Purchase Of Home Arouses Storm

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2 (AP) — Purchase of a home in the fashionable Hancock Park district by the wealthy Nat (King) Cole, negro musician, has touched off a storm of protest by a property owners' association.

Attorney Harold C. Morton, representing the association, said he had offered to buy the ivy-covered, English-style red brick structure back from Cole "at exactly the price he paid for it, which I understand was about $65,000."

Cole's lawyer, Irving Hill, said the pianist-singer had been served with an affidavit pointing out that homes in Hancock Park were covered by covenants restricting ownership to those of the Caucasian race and that the residents "will avail themselves of appropriate legal and equitable remedies in event of their breach."

Mort Ruby, Cole's business manager, said the affidavit had not been answered "but in view of the recent United States Supreme Court decision outlawing race restriction covenants I think no legal action can be maintained."

Cole gave this explanation:

"I have always been a good citizen. I would like to meet all my new neighbors and explain the situation to them."

He told newsmen "this is not an act of defiance. My bride and I like this house. I can afford it and we would like to make it our home."

Cole plans to live in his house with his attractive bride, Marie Ellington, a former singer in Duke Ellington's band. She is no relation to Bandman Ellington.

Ohio Governor Orders Troops To Univis Plant

Will Reopen Today; Five Unionists Found Guilty Of Contempt

DAYTON, O., Aug. 2 (AP) — Gov. Thomas J. Herbert late today ordered the Ohio National Guard to move in and "maintain law and order" at the Univis Lens Company plant, scene of strike disorders.

Company officials immediately announced plans to reopen the plant tomorrow morning.

The Governor accused the CIO United Electrical Workers local at the plant of "a complete breach of good faith" in not ending a 90-day strike. He said it was imperative that the state send in troops.

Not to do so, Herbert added in a formal statement, would "mean submission to the dictates of a group of men who seem determined to pursue a course of violations of our laws" and in defiance of court orders.

Union Plans Mass Picketing

As a showdown neared, the union appealed to all Dayton unions to mass pickets at the plant entrance at 6:30 a. m. (EST) tomorrow.

Meanwhile, five UE officials and pickets were found guilty of contempt for ignoring a court order to remain away from the plant. Common Pleas Judge Paul T. Klapp warned them they would be jailed immediately if they reappeared there.

Gov. Herbert, frustrated in efforts to settle the strike which has produced picket-line fighting and use of tear gas by police, responded late today to a call for help from Mayor Louis Lohrey and Sheriff Ben Smith.

Reviewing his efforts to end the strike, and failure of the strikers to ratify a union-management agreement announced last night, Herbert declared:

"It is about time that the public knows the Communistic pattern followed in the conduct of this dispute."

Agreement "Repudiated"

Gov. Herbert said he left Dayton last night with an agreement to terminate the strike signed by UE officials, then "this morning I learned that this agreement was repudiated."

A group of 225 striking workers refused to ratify the settlement approved by their leaders. The vote was announced as unanimous.

The Governor asserted it was "quite apparent" that a majority of Univis employes "are desperately anxious to work at their jobs without hindrance or violence."

Then, announcing that he was directing Adjt. Gen. Chester W. Goble to send in a detachment of National Guardsmen, the Governor remarked:

The troops ordered in are from Southwestern Ohio, under the command of Col. George Schiele, of the 147th Infantry. The size of the force and its time of arrival was described by the Adjutant General's office as a "military secret."

In Good Humor After Lengthy Kremlin Parley

No Statement Made By Three Diplomats; Crisis Seen Easing

MOSCOW, Aug. 2 (AP)—Envoys of the United States, Britain and France emerged smiling and in good spirits tonight after conferring in the Kremlin with Prime Minister Stalin on the chances of settling East-West differences in Berlin and all Europe.

Their two-hour-and-fifteen-minute meeting was the longest any foreign representatives have ever had with the Russian leader. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov also was present.

The Western Power diplomats left the walled center of the Soviet government at 11:15 p. m. (4:15 p. m., Eastern Standard Time) and hurried to the American Embassy where they immediately went into conference.

At the embassy, the three western envoys—United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau and Frank Roberts, special British representative — had no immediate comment to make on their conversations with the Soviet leader. Obviously in a great hurry and in good humor, they pounded up three flights of stairs to Smith's office without waiting for the elevator.

Tense Situation Eases

Even before their Kremlin visit there were indications of an easing of the tense international situation. Authoritive sources said progress already has been made among the four great powers.

During the night, official reports on the meeting with Stalin will be dispatched to Washington, London and Paris.

As Smith, Roberts and Chataigneau rushed into the embassy, they refused to say anything about their lengthy talk.

All three were smiling and affable. As they hurried into the embassy building, Smith led his two colleagues up the stairway. Correspondents had to follow him partly up the steps before they could stop him. Then, turning and laughing, the United States ambassador said:

"Wait a minute. You can't follow me right into my office. We're having a meeting here tonight, you know."

Other United States, British and French officials already were in the embassy waiting for their chiefs to return from the Kremlin.

Smith told reporters: "Generalissimo Stalin and Mr. Molotov received us all at a meeting."

Top-Level Talks Speculated

Then he added: "There will probably be a communique to that effect tonight. I don't think there will be anything more. I'm sorry but that's all."

Veteran correspondents who have covered Kremlin meetings for years said tonight's conference was one of the longest they could recall. The most obvious aftermath of the meeting was the good humor the western diplomats were in as they rushed from the Kremlin across Hunter's Square to the United States Embassy. In the short space of a minute and a half they covered the distance from the Kremlin gates to the embassy.

(British diplomatic writers speculated that the meeting with Stalin soon might lead to a conference of Stalin, President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and French Premier Andre Marie.

(A strict official silence was observed by the United States State

Legislation To Tighten Bank Credit May Be Asked By GOP

Republicans Draft Anti-Inflation Plan, Housing Measure

WASHINGTON, Aug 2 (AP)—The congressional Republican high command today drew the outlines of a GOP anti-inflation program, flatly rejecting most of President Truman's proposals.

Chairman Wolcott (R-Mich), of the House Banking Committee, told reporters he probably would introduce the Republican bill on Wednesday.

The GOP program, in a preliminary stage and not formally announced, was reported to include:

1. Legislation to tighten bank credit by increasing bank reserve requirements.

2. A housing bill that would (A) re-enact the so-called "Title 6" under which the government insures mortgages on new dwellings; (B) legislation giving investors in rental property tax savings by increasing the rate of depreciation of the property; and (C) yield insurance, guaranteeing a profit for investors in large rental properties.

The housing bill, eliminating the controversial federal low-rent housing and slum clearance, passed the House during the regular session and is pending in the Senate.

Credit Curbs Discussed

Mr. Truman has asked for that measure, with the subsidized housing feature back in it, along with price and rationing controls, and a multi-billion dollar excess profits tax.

The Republican program outline was drawn at a meeting of House Speaker Martin, Sen. Taft of Ohio, House Republican Leader Halleck of Indiana, and Wolcott.

They also discussed whether wartime controls on installment buying should be restored. Indications were that no agreement was reached on this subject.

The session was held amid indications that Congress might clean up its extra session work and quit in a few days.

The Truman profits tax bill was sent to the Capitol earlier in the day.

Republican leaders let it be known immediately it has no more chance of enactment than the President's price control.

They were working on an anti-inflation plan of their own. They hoped to get action on this and then adjourn the extra session next week.

Simultaneously, there were these developments on the cost-of-living front:

U. S. Communist Leader Praises Wallace's Group

Foster Lashes Out At GOP And Demos

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—William Z. Foster, national Communist Party chairman, tonight praised Henry A. Wallace's party and said "a vote for either Truman or Dewey means a vote for eventual Fascism or war."

"They are brazen liars who charge that the Communist Party is trying to dominate the new party or to claim the credit for its formation," Foster asserted in a speech prepared for a rally at Madison Square Garden.

The rally opened the 14th national convention of the Communist party. It will continue through Thursday.

The party leader said the Democratic and Republican Parties "are both dominated by Wall Street, their candidates and platforms were dictated by big business, and both are committed to American imperialism's policy of world conquest x x x.

Wallace's Party Praised

"The new Progressive Party offers the opportunity for the forces fighting for peace and against inflation and Fascism, to organize and express their strength.

"It's national ticket, Wallace and Taylor, will rally hosts of workers, negroes, farmers, veterans, women, youth, intellectuals, and other patriotic Americans who are determined that our people shall not be butchered for the profit and glory of Wall Street."

Foster declared "the Progressive Party is in no sense a Communist Party."

The Communists have many points of difference with the Wallace group, he said, explaining:

"The most important is that while many leaders in the Progressive Party believe that the badly-crippled world capitalist system can be saved and transformed into 'progressive capitalism,' we Marxist-Leninists do not. Capitalism historically is on its way off the world stage."

Senate Rejects 58-13, Resolution To Adjourn Aug. 4

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—(AP) —The Senate late today voted down, 58 to 13, a resolution to adjourn the special congressional session August 4.

The resolution was offered by Sen. Johnson (D-SC). It gathered support only from his Dixie colleagues while northern Democrats and Republicans joined forces to defeat it.

Planes Like One Missing With 52 Aboard Grounded

PARIS, Aug. 2—(AP)—Air France said tonight it was forced to concede that only some mechanical defect could explain the disappearance of its huge flying boat which is missing over the South Atlantic with 52 persons aboard.

Therefore, the air line officials said, they were grounding all seaplanes of that type—the 73-ton, six engine Latecoere 631—pending an exhaustive study of the plane.

Bad weather tonight hampered rescue ships and planes which have been searching the ocean since the giant airliner vanished nearly two days ago. It failed to arrive at Port Etienne, Mauritania, West Africa, after taking off from Martinique in the French West Indies.

The last radio report from the missing plane said all was well. Air France said since the weather was favorable, it was unreasonable to assume the plane had been bothered by storms.

The air line also said it was unlikely that engine trouble was to blame since the giant plane is capable of flying on only four of its six motors. Officials said the plane was equipped with Wright engines and that its pilot had more than 1,800,000 flight miles to his credit.

Fusee-Carrying Balloon Sets Indianapolis Agog

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 2 (AP)—The sparkling "ball of fire" that set Indianapolis agog last night was just what the doctor ordered—a surplus Army balloon, with a railroad fusee attached.

Lowell Nussbaum, Indianapolis Star columnist, said Dr. Howard Aldrich told him, "Sure I sent it up. I never dreamed it would cause so much excitement."

The physician said he bought several balloons and had been sending them up, mostly in the daytime, with the name and address of his daughter, Alice, 12, attached. He said one landed recently in Dayton, Ohio.

Landlady Sleeps In Tub, Bathless Tenants Charge

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2—(AP)—Nine rooming house tenants who claim they need a bath filed suit today because, they alleged, their landlady insisted on sleeping in the tub.

The Superior Court complaint, asking $50,000 damages, charged also the landlady, Mrs. June Gilbert, levied rents in excess of OPA ceilings in addition to sleeping in the porcelain bedstead when they wanted to perform their ablutions.

U. S. Says Russia Balks Arms Cut

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP) —The United States accused Russia today of obstructing United Nations attempts to reduce and regulate world arms. Russia heatedly replied that the United States and Britain had sabotaged the arms-cutting program.

The flareup between Frederick H. Osborn, United States delegate, and Jakob A. Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, came at an open meeting of the United Nations Commission for Conventional Armaments. It was the latest and apparently the most intense clash between United States and Soviet delegates in a long series of wordy arguments in the commission.

The commission decided to meet at 9 a. m. EST, next Monday as a working committee. Malik promised he will reply to Osborn in full at that time.

The commission virtually has given up efforts to write an arms regulation convention because Russia and the Western Powers cannot agree.

Britain Offers $400,000 Toward Arab Relief Fund

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 2—(AP)—Britain offered $400,000 today toward a relief fund for 300,000 Arab refugees in the Middle East.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, British delegate, told the United Nations Security Council that it should ask the International Red Cross to send a small party to Palestine and the Middle East to examine the scope of the refugee problem.

He said it is almost certain the Red Cross would find additional money is needed to care for the Arabs.

Dixie Filibuster Goes On As Move To Check It Fails

"Cloture" Proposal Ruled Out Of Order

WASHINGTON, Aug 2 (AP)—Filibustering Dixie senators won a major round today in their effort to talk the anti-poll tax bill to death.

The presiding officer, Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich) decided that an effort to curb the debate was in conflict with Senate rules, and so the talkathon continued.

It was highly doubtful whether the Senate would reach a vote at this extra session on the bill to outlaw the poll tax as a qualification for voting.

The situation was this:

Last Wednesday, Sen. Wherry (R-Neb) made a motion to take up the bill, which is part of President Truman's civil rights program.

Southerners immediately started a filibuster against the motion, and since then the Senate has been tied up in knots.

"Cloture" Proposal Out Of Order

Today Wherry proposed that the Senate invoke "cloture," which would limit each senator to one hour's talk. Wherry's proposal would have required a two thirds vote to become effective.

But it never got to a vote. Vandenberg ruled it out of order.

He did so reluctantly, he said, because he personally favors the anti-poll tax bill. Moreover, he added, Senate rules should permit a curb on debate in such cases. But the fact is, he declared, that they do not.

He said it seemed plain to him that when the Senate adopted its rules about cloture in 1917, it meant that they should apply to pending bills, not to pending motions.

And the matter pending before the Senate today was a motion—to take up the anti-poll tax bill—and not a bill.

"In the final analysis," Vandenberg said, "the Senate has no effective cloture rules at all."

Taft Appeals Ruling

A few senators "have it in their power to prevent Senate action on anything.

Vandenberg invited any senator to appeal his ruling to the chamber at large. Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) immediately did so.

But Sen. Robertson (D - Va) launched a speech against Taft's appeal.

He said passage of the poll tax bill would help submerge the sovereignty of the states in an overpowering central government.

The bill, he said, is unconstitutional, unnecessary and undesirable.

Only seven states now require their people to pay the tax in order to vote, he said, and in several of these states movements are underway to repeal the levy.

ALHAMBRA, Calif., Aug. 2—(AP)—The death of William Calvin Morgan, 79, better known as Bronco Bill, was disclosed today.

A colorful figure of the old west, Morgan won the world's championship for breaking wild horses at the Chicago World Fair in 1893.

1,000 4-H Club Members Gather At College Park

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Aug. 2 (AP) —More than 1,000 boys and girls were registered here today for the 26th annual 4-H Club Week on the campus of the University of Maryland.

The affair is being held in connection with the National 4-H Club Week.

Latest farm techniques will be taught to boys attending the sessions. The girls will get instructions on dressmaking and other domestic features of farm life.

Legislation Would Boost Postal Workers' Salaries

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP) — Legislation to increase the pay of most post office workers $350 a year and to set up a 35-hour work week was introduced today by Sen. Langer (R-ND) and Johnston (D-SC).

Langer said in a statement he hopes the measure will be studied with the view of action early next year.

He said recent salary legislation did not provide adequate raises for postal employes.

The bill would provide 20 per cent extra, instead of the present 10 per cent, for night work. It also would provide an annual uniform allowance for letter carriers, who now buy their own uniforms.

Fortune Found In Hovel Occupied By Late Recluse

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 2—(AP)—Police began a methodical check today of a junk-crammed house rented by a 67-year-old recluse who died of starvation although she had a fortune of over $100,000 hidden away.

Amid stacks of newspapers, piles of furniture and crates of odds and ends, City Attorney George F. Meister and Police Sgt. John Parkerson sought a clue to some relative of Mrs. Julia Kearney.

A search of her shabby, one-story hovel already has uncovered more than $20,000 in cash and $80,000 in negotiable bonds and securities.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Kearney, who lived alone, collapsed on her weed-covered front yard. She was removed to a hospital where doctors found she was suffering from malnutrition. She died last Thursday.

A nurse making a routine check of the dead woman's belongings found $1,600 in cash in her purse and three diamond rings sewed to her underclothing.

When police got a court order to enter her house in hope of finding a clue to some next of kin, they located the fortune.

A check showed she slept on an untidy mattress. Clothing lay littered over floors strewn with empty tin cans and egg shells.

One room was filled to the ceiling with old furniture, bolts of cloth, crates of empty paper bags, wooden trunks and heaps of rags.

Neighbors who described her as "very secretive and very stingy," said when she went shopping she hitch-hiked to save bus fare.

A 15-year-old boy said he helped her carry old papers from the house about a year ago but quit when she hinted she might charge him for the papers.

Two B-29s Reach Tokyo On Globe-Girdling Flight

TOKYO, Tuesday, Aug. 3 (AP)—Two B-29 bombers landed this morning at Yokota airfield, 20 miles west of Tokyo, on their around-the-world flight. They started on July 22 from Tucson, Ariz.

Their 10-hour flight from Manila ended at 9:04 and 9:29 a. m. (7:04 and 7:29 p. m. Monday, EST). The planes will remain at Yokota until 9 a. m. tomorrow when they are scheduled to take off for Anchorage, Alaska.

Three planes began the long training flight from Arizona, but one crashed at Aden last week.

Virginia's 1948 Polio Cases Boosted To 113

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 2 (AP) — Eleven new cases in the first two days of August sent Virginia's 1948 polio total to 113 today.

The rather sudden jump, based on past experience in the state this year, was not regarded by State Health Department officials as any undue cause for alarm. They noted with a degree of hopefulness that Virginia's cases are fairly well scattered and there are no areas of high concentration such as are evident in the central section of epidemic-ridden North Carolina.

Negro Women Denied Admission To U. Of Okla.

NORMAN, Okla., Aug. 2—(AP)—A state court today denied admission to the University of Oklahoma to three negro women. Negro leaders announced they would carry the fight against Oklahoma's racial segration laws again to the United States Supreme court.

One of the three rejected was Mrs. Ada Fisher, Chickasha, who for more than two years has waged a court fight to enter the university law school.

The others were Mauderie Hancock-Wilson, and Helen Maxine Holmes, both of Oklahoma City.

"King" Cole's Purchase Of Home Arouses Storm

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2 (AP) — Purchase of a home in the fashionable Hancock Park district by the wealthy Nat (King) Cole, negro musician, has touched off a storm of protest by a property owners' association.

Attorney Harold C. Morton, representing the association, said he had offered to buy the ivy-covered, English-style red brick structure back from Cole "at exactly the price he paid for it, which I understand was about $65,000."

Cole's lawyer, Irving Hill, said the pianist-singer had been served with an affidavit pointing out that homes in Hancock Park were covered by covenants restricting ownership to those of the Caucasian race and that the residents "will avail themselves of appropriate legal and equitable remedies in event of their breach."

Mort Ruby, Cole's business manager, said the affidavit had not been answered "but in view of the recent United States Supreme Court decision outlawing race restriction covenants I think no legal action can be maintained."

Cole gave this explanation:

"I have always been a good citizen. I would like to meet all my new neighbors and explain the situation to them."

He told newsmen "this is not an act of defiance. My bride and I like this house. I can afford it and we would like to make it our home."

Cole plans to live in his house with his attractive bride, Marie Ellington, a former singer in Duke Ellington's band. She is no relation to Bandman Ellington.

Russia Unfolds Plan For Danube

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Aug. 2 (AP)—Russia unfolded today a plan for placing the Danube River under the exclusive control of Central Europe's Communist bloc. The Soviets made it plain quick approval will be sought regardless of the action of the Western Powers.

Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, circulated the plan among the delegates of 11 nations here just after nipping in the bud a French suggestion that major conference decision be reached by a two-thirds vote.

He insisted on a simple majority vote to decide the future of Central Europe's most important trade artery. He got his way, even though he apparently has safe in his pocket, seven of the conferences' votes. Austria is sitting only as an observer.

Then Vishinsky whipped out the Soviet control plan and told the conference he would introduce it tomorrow. Approval appears sure.

The document came as no surprise. Its key clause said: "There shall be established the Danube commission to be composed of one representative of each Danube state."

This would mean a commission made up of Russia, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and the Soviet Ukraine. Under terms of an annex Austria would be given a seat after she gets a peace treaty.

Aside from the makeup of the governing commission the document showed few major differences from the Danubean convention drafted in Paris in 1921.

Ray Mangrum Qualifies For All-American

CHICAGO, Aug. 2—(AP)—Ray Mangrum, of Los Angeles, Calif., today carved two strokes off Tam O'Shanter's par with a pair of 35's for a 70 to head 28 pros in qualifying for the All-American tournament.

The qualifiers will join 113 exempted pros when the tournament proper begins tomorrow.

This field—which includes most of the big name performers—will begin a 72-hole medal play battle for prize money totalling $30,000. The winner will pocket $5,000 and such sharpshooters as Lloyd Mangrum, Ray's younger brother; Bobby Locke, Jimmy Demaret and Skip Alexander, are the favorites.

Ben Hogan, the National Open and PGA champion, is not entered but probably will compete in the separate "world's championship" division of the golf potpurri Saturday and Sunday.

BERLIN, Aug. 2 (AP)—A conference of western diplomats with Prime Minister Stalin in Moscow tonight caused Americans to delay dealing with the troubled currency situation in Berlin.

American occupation authorities met with German bankers to find ways of dealing with the Soviet freeze on accounts of Western Berlin firms.

American sources said it had been planned to tell banks to issue loans to the firms to tide them over, but the plan was abandoned pending developments from the conference with Stalin.

The Russians froze the accounts last week. They claimed irregularities in deposits made by Western Berliners in connection with the recent currency exchange when old notes were turned in for new Soviet zone money.

Meanwhile, the Soviet-backed German police in the Red sector of Berlin launched an arrest-on-sight war against their counterparts in the western sectors.

Four western sector policemen were seized over the weekend when they entered the eastern sector. They still are in custody.

Youth Held For Attempted Rape Of Baby Sitter

BALTIMORE, Aug. 2 (AP)—A 17-year-old youth was charged today with attempting to rape a young baby sitter.

Samuel Palumbo was held without bail pending grand jury action after testimony in Northwestern Police Court that he bound, gagged and attempted to rape the girl in a house which he had burglarized.

Police said a 15-year-old girl related that she went to a house in Dolfield Avenue yesterday afternoon on call from a baby-sitter agency.

She was met at the door by the youth who said he would take her "upstairs and show her the baby."

There was no baby. Instead, she said the youth attempted to assault her and in the struggle both fell downstairs together.

The excess profits tax bill was sent to Capitol Hill. Its details were not immediately disclosed. But one informed person said that if enacted it woud collect about $3,000,000,000 a year.

acter assassination for rebels. And he said Golos' "control" committee kept complete information on party members for that purpose—including records of members' family affairs, associations, financial affairs.

With Golos on the control committee, Budenz said, were Clarence Derba and sometimes Alexander Biddleman. It was a highly-secret organization even within the party, he said.

Discipline is so strict, he went on, that a party member is not allowed even to ask questions. When told to contact someone, Budenz said, the Communist worker must not inquire about that person's identity unless it is essential to his mission. Neither, he said, may the party member question any conclusion passed on to him, and "any order given to you by a superior has to be carried out."

"Can a person be a loyal member of the Communist Party and loyal to the United States of America," Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) asked.

"Not in fact," Budenz responded.

State To Keep $4,200 In Payments Sent In Without Any Identification

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 2 (AP) — Only the people who came across with that $4,200 know why they did it, but Maryland's going to keep the money just the same.

The state income tax division deposited the sum in the bank today.

It went into the "undistributed account."

That means it came in cash and checks from about 400 people who didn't tell what it was for.

Chief Clerk Robert C. Paxon said the money has dribbled in for several months. But a minute search of the records has uncovered no reason for any of the offerings.

Some could not be identified anyway. They came in postal notes bearing no name, or checks with illegible signatures.

Others simply came in the mail with no explanation of what they were for. They could have been for 1947 tax debts, or any previous year. Anyway, the books yielded no record of previous payments.

Walter E. Kennedy, of the comptroller's office, said it probably cost more than $4,200 in time and effort to try to identify the payments.

"Irregularities like this probably cost us $25,000 a year," he said ruefully. "Fifty proper payments can be processed in the time it takes for one irregular."

Russia Unfolds Plan For Danube

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Aug. 2 (AP)—Russia unfolded today a plan for placing the Danube River under the exclusive control of Central Europe's Communist bloc. The Soviets made it plain quick approval will be sought regardless of the action of the Western Powers.

Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, circulated the plan among the delegates of 11 nations here just after nipping in the bud a French suggestion that major conference decision be reached by a two-thirds vote.

He insisted on a simple majority vote to decide the future of Central Europe's most important trade artery. He got his way, even though he apparently has safe in his pocket, seven of the conferences' votes. Austria is sitting only as an observer.

Then Vishinsky whipped out the Soviet control plan and told the conference he would introduce it tomorrow. Approval appears sure.

The document came as no surprise. Its key clause said: "There shall be established the Danube commission to be composed of one representative of each Danube state."

This would mean a commission made up of Russia, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and the Soviet Ukraine. Under terms of an annex Austria would be given a seat after she gets a peace treaty.

Aside from the makeup of the governing commission the document showed few major differences from the Danubean convention drafted in Paris in 1921.

Ray Mangrum Qualifies For All-American

CHICAGO, Aug. 2—(AP)—Ray Mangrum, of Los Angeles, Calif., today carved two strokes off Tam O'Shanter's par with a pair of 35's for a 70 to head 28 pros in qualifying for the All-American tournament.

The qualifiers will join 113 exempted pros when the tournament proper begins tomorrow.

This field—which includes most of the big name performers—will begin a 72-hole medal play battle for prize money totalling $30,000. The winner will pocket $5,000 and such sharpshooters as Lloyd Mangrum, Ray's younger brother; Bobby Locke, Jimmy Demaret and Skip Alexander, are the favorites.

Ben Hogan, the National Open and PGA champion, is not entered but probably will compete in the separate "world's championship" division of the golf potpurri Saturday and Sunday.

Two American grapplers, Glenn Brand of Clarion, Iowa, and Henry Wittenberg, the wrestling cop from New York, won individual titles. Brann triumphed in the middleweight class while Wittenberg garnered the light heavyweight crown.

BERLIN, Aug. 2 (AP)—A conference of western diplomats with Prime Minister Stalin in Moscow tonight caused Americans to delay dealing with the troubled currency situation in Berlin.

American occupation authorities met with German bankers to find ways of dealing with the Soviet freeze on accounts of Western Berlin firms.

American sources said it had been planned to tell banks to issue loans to the firms to tide them over, but the plan was abandoned pending developments from the conference with Stalin.

The Russians froze the accounts last week. They claimed irregularities in deposits made by Western Berliners in connection with the recent currency exchange when old notes were turned in for new Soviet zone money.

Meanwhile, the Soviet-backed German police in the Red sector of Berlin launched an arrest-on-sight war against their counterparts in the western sectors.

Four western sector policemen were seized over the weekend when they entered the eastern sector. They still are in custody.

Youth Held For Attempted Rape Of Baby Sitter

BALTIMORE, Aug. 2 (AP)—A 17-year-old youth was charged today with attempting to rape a young baby sitter.

Samuel Palumbo was held without bail pending grand jury action after testimony in Northwestern Police Court that he bound, gagged and attempted to rape the girl in a house which he had burglarized.

Police said a 15-year-old girl related that she went to a house in Dolfield Avenue yesterday afternoon on call from a baby-sitter agency.

She was met at the door by the youth who said he would take her "upstairs and show her the baby."

There was no baby. Instead, she said the youth attempted to assault her and in the struggle both fell downstairs together.

2. An effort to force an immediate vote on housing legislation, providing among other things for publicly-owned low-rent housing, failed in the House.

3. A congressional investigation of recent price boosts by big corporations — especially United States Steel—was proposed to the House Banking Committee by Rep. Spence, of Kentucky, senior committee Democrat. Chairman Wolcott (R-Mich) said representatives of the steel and meat industries might be invited to testify.

4. The Senate Banking Committee was informed by Porter that if Congress passed a price control law, first consideration would be given to price ceiling on meat, butter, fluid milk, dairy products, steel, non-ferrous metals, building materials and some wearing apparel.

The excess profits tax bill was sent to Capitol Hill. Its details were not immediately disclosed. But one informed person said that if enacted it woud collect about $3,000,000,000 a year.

Teen-Agers Turn Baby Sitters, Buy Organ For Church

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 2—(AP)—Baby sitting was the chief source of revenue for a group of teen-agers who came here today from Milltown, Ind., to buy an electric organ for their church.

Rev. John Drollinger, pastor of the Milltown Christian Church, said the class of 10 young people had raised $1,595 since January to purchase the organ for his church, which has a congregation of less than 100 persons.

acter assassination for rebels. And he said Golos' "control" committee kept complete information on party members for that purpose—including records of members' family affairs, associations, financial affairs.

With Golos on the control committee, Budenz said, were Clarence Derba and sometimes Alexander Biddleman. It was a highly-secret organization even within the party, he said.

Discipline is so strict, he went on, that a party member is not allowed even to ask questions. When told to contact someone, Budenz said, the Communist worker must not inquire about that person's identity unless it is essential to his mission. Neither, he said, may the party member question any conclusion passed on to him, and "any order given to you by a superior has to be carried out."

"Can a person be a loyal member of the Communist Party and loyal to the United States of America," Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) asked.

"Not in fact," Budenz responded.

State To Keep $4,200 In Payments Sent In Without Any Identification

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 2 (AP)—Only the people who came across with that $4,200 know why they did it, but Maryland's going to keep the money just the same.

The state income tax division deposited the sum in the bank today.

It went into the "undistributed account."

That means it came in cash and checks from about 400 people who didn't tell what it was for.

Chief Clerk Robert C. Paxon said the money has dribbled in for several months. But a minute search of the records has uncovered no reason for any of the offerings.

Some could not be identified anyway. They came in postal notes bearing no name, or checks with illegible signatures.

Others simply came in the mail with no explanation of what they were for. They could have been for 1947 tax debts, or any previous year. Anyway, the books yielded no record of previous payments.

Walter E. Kennedy, of the comptroller's office, said it probably cost more than $4,200 in time and effort to try to identify the payments.

"Irregularities like this probably cost us $25,000 a year," he said ruefully. "Fifty proper payments can be processed in the time it takes for one irregular."

Just Between Us

Be Frank With Him; Candor Is Cement Of Good Relations

By NANCY MOTTRAM

Nancy Mottram

(Q) "Dear Nancy: During a recent fight with the boy I date steadily, I went out on another date. I realized that evening that I was being very silly about our squabble, and the next day, he came over and we patched up our differences. But I didn't tell him about the date I had during the time we weren't speaking. Now everything is fine between us again, and I wonder if I should tell him about it. I can't make up my mind and I hope you can help me."

(A) You have a choice of coming right out and telling him about it, or assuming that it isn't important enough and not worth risking another quarrel by admitting it. You accepted that date when you two were temporarily considering calling it all off, but now that you're back together again, it shouldn't be a vital issue. But keeping it quiet may bother you for some time, and it might be the best thing to explain that it didn't mean anything to you, and that you regret having broken your agreement, despite the circumstances. Otherwise, he might hear about it, and the fact that you didn't tell him might be cause for another argument. If he's really fond of you, and considers your friendship too important to risk losing by holding a grudge, he'll accept your honest apology, and both of you can agree to forget the whole incident.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: There's a boy whom I see quite often around our neighborhood, and although I've never noticed him particularly before, he seems now to be around most of the time. He has a friend who lives a couple of houses away, and every time I pass by, he smiles a little and looks as though he'd like to say hello, but doesn't quite dare. I'd like to meet him, but how should I arrange it?"

(A) You've seen him so often of late that it wouldn't be out of place to return his smile and perhaps add a friendly "Hi." One or two days of this, and he might get up enough courage to add something more to the conversation, or come over and introduce himself. Let him make the first move in that direction, and until he does, keep your greetings pleasant, but short and casual.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: No matter where one of my closest friends and I go, or what we do, we always end up quarreling. When she wants to go somewhere, I go, and if she regrets her choice, she blames me. If I insist on doing what I want to do, she claims I have to have my own way. Occasionally, she tells me she's too nice to me. Then, we usually do something she wants to do. All these arguments are breaking up our friendship. How can I stop them?"

(A) You're not just a friend, you're her own private army to command. To keep you in line, she'll complain that you always have your own way, and you'll do whatever she says next to prove her wrong. Stand up for your rights and refuse to let her dictate to you. And if she doesn't want to play the game fairly, leave her alone until she's willing to see your point of view, too.

Nancy will answer as many questions as possible in her column. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Hospital Employes Return To Work

Eight of 16 employes of Memorial Hospital who were hospitalized when they became ill after eating food at the hospital Sunday have returned to work, Benjamin W. Wright, superintendent of the hospital, announced last night.

Wright reported that 28 of about 200 persons who ate the food between 5 and 6 p. m. Sunday became ill Sunday night but only 16 required hospitalization.

Dr. Benedict Skitarelic, staff pathologist at the hospital, is conducting an investigation, Wright said, but the results will not be known for two or three days. Wright also said he had asked the Maryland Department of Health to make a complete investigation of the case.

No patients were affected by the illness, Wright said.

Bruce Urges Cut In Food Prices

The retail food dealers represent an important element of America but they would be well advised to take steps to reduce the cost of food, Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., Democratic State Central Committe chairman of Allegany County, said yesterday.

Magistrate Bruce's remarks were directed at J. Goodloe Jackson, secretary of the Independent Retail Food Dealers Association of Western Maryland, who recently criticized administration attempts to restore price controls on food prices.

"One of the greatest dangers facing America today is inflation, and the greatest hardship on American wage earners and others with moderate or low incomes is the rapidly increasing cost of living," Magistrate Bruce said, adding "If price control is not the answer then what is?"

City Parking Lot Meeting Planned

A meeting to discuss a municipal parking lot location on North George Street will be held with R. A. J. Morrison, superintendent of the Cumberland Division of the B. and O. Railroad, Commissioner Keegan said yesterday.

No date has been set for the session, Keegan said, adding it will be the first talk with Morrison since he replaced H. F. Wyatt as division head here.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Mother Wants To Help Son She Has Found After 20 Years

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My marriage did not work out, and after a son was born, my husband and I separated and were finally divorced. I was given custody of this child, but he was forcibly taken from me and I never saw him again until a few weeks ago, when after 20 years he unexpectedly came back into my life. In the meantime, I was married again to a marvelous man who has guided and protected me against all other hurts of life.

My son is a fine young man and I am proud of his progress. He is devoted to me. He could use some financial help, and I could afford to give it to him and he certainly deserves it. His life wasn't easy and my help would give him a push to better things.

Would I spoil him or damage his independence if I offered him this help?

"R. I. I."

Dear "R. I. I.":

If your son is the fine character you believe him to be, I can't see any reason why it would spoil or otherwise harm him if you gave him the help he needs at this time to get him started on a career. Apparently, you have never been in a position to do anything for him before, and I should think it only natural for you, as his mother, to do what you can now that you are able.

I can't quite understand what you say about his having been forcibly taken from you with the result you never saw him again for 20 years. In a divorce suit, if a woman is given custody of her children, the courts will protect her and see to it that the children stay with her if her husband tries to take them from her. How does it happen that you never sought legal help to get your son back?

However, whatever your difficulties might have been, if you have a chance now to make it up to him, you should certainly take it, provided you do it in a wise way and do not just lavish luxuries on him.

Hospital Employes Return To Work

Eight of 16 employes of Memorial Hospital who were hospitalized when they became ill after eating food at the hospital Sunday have returned to work, Benjamin W. Wright, superintendent of the hospital, announced last night.

Wright reported that 28 of about 200 persons who ate the food between 5 and 6 p. m. Sunday became ill Sunday night but only 16 required hospitalization.

Dr. Benedict Skitarelic, staff pathologist at the hospital, is conducting an investigation, Wright said, but the results will not be known for two or three days. Wright also said he had asked the Maryland Department of Health to make a complete investigation of the case.

No patients were affected by the illness, Wright said.

Bruce Urges Cut In Food Prices

The retail food dealers represent an important element of America but they would be well advised to take steps to reduce the cost of food, Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., Democratic State Central Committe chairman of Allegany County, said yesterday.

Magistrate Bruce's remarks were directed at J. Goodloe Jackson, secretary of the Independent Retail Food Dealers Association of Western Maryland, who recently criticized administration attempts to restore price controls on food prices.

"One of the greatest dangers facing America today is inflation, and the greatest hardship on American wage earners and others with moderate or low incomes is the rapidly increasing cost of living," Magistrate Bruce said, adding "If price control is not the answer then what is?"

City Parking Lot Meeting Planned

A meeting to discuss a municipal parking lot location on North George Street will be held with R. A. J. Morrison, superintendent of the Cumberland Division of the B. and O. Railroad, Commissioner Keegan said yesterday.

No date has been set for the session, Keegan said, adding it will be the first talk with Morrison since he replaced H. F. Wyatt as division head here.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Mother Wants To Help Son She Has Found After 20 Years

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My marriage did not work out, and after a son was born, my husband and I separated and were finally divorced. I was given custody of this child, but he was forcibly taken from me and I never saw him again until a few weeks ago, when after 20 years he unexpectedly came back into my life. In the meantime, I was married again to a marvelous man who has guided and protected me against all other hurts of life.

My son is a fine young man and I am proud of his progress. He is devoted to me. He could use some financial help, and I could afford to give it to him and he certainly deserves it. His life wasn't easy and my help would give him a push to better things.

Would I spoil him or damage his independence if I offered him this help?

"R. I. I."

Dear "R. I. I.":

If your son is the fine character you believe him to be, I can't see any reason why it would spoil or otherwise harm him if you gave him the help he needs at this time to get him started on a career. Apparently, you have never been in a position to do anything for him before, and I should think it only natural for you, as his mother, to do what you can now that you are able.

I can't quite understand what you say about his having been forcibly taken from you with the result you never saw him again for 20 years. In a divorce suit, if a woman is given custody of her children, the courts will protect her and see to it that the children stay with her if her husband tries to take them from her. How does it happen that you never sought legal help to get your son back?

However, whatever your difficulties might have been, if you have a chance now to make it up to him, you should certainly take it, provided you do it in a wise way and do not just lavish luxuries on him.

New Offer To Russia May Be Made By Western Powers

Since so many other four-power conferences have failed, it is probably the part of wisdom not to expect too much of the present plan of the western powers to get the Soviet around the council table for a discussion of the entire European question. Still and all the effort is worth making and it may just happen that the Russians will be willing to negotiate.

At least there has been no word out of Moscow to date which even remotely suggests that the overtures of the United States, Great Britain and France will be rejected. In fact probably before this is read announcement may be forthcoming that Premier Stalin has agreed to meet with diplomats of the three powers. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov agreed to consider the request for such a meeting. This development has come about despite the fact that on some previous occasions the Soviet announced flatly in advance there was nothing to talk about and that any meeting of minds was therefore a waste of time. In the present instance it is keeping an open mind although it probably knows what the West will propose. This could be a good omen.

On the other hand, a number of well-informed men in Western Europe took the willingness of Washington and London to negotiate as evidence that they are prepared to yield in Berlin. Some men in London who are completely dry behind the ears suspect that a deal is in the making whereby the Western powers would evacuate Berlin, in return, say, for a Soviet agreement to make peace with Austria and withdraw her troops there.

It need hardly be said that not one word spoken in official Washington or London encourages any such belief. All Western leaders have asserted firmly, even vociferously, that "we will not be coerced." But this is a suspicious world, and the offer to negotiate on the future of the Ruhr has whetted the suspicion that a deal of some kind is in the making.

The prevailing view in Western Europe is that Russia does not want a war now but is determined either to drive the Western powers from their Berlin treaty positions, or, preferably, to let them remain in return for a voice in the distribution of Ruhr products. Should Russia win such a voice—and veto power—in return for reopening Berlin's food and fuel routes, her blockade would have paid huge dividends. Far from assuring peace, that result would make Russia more intransigeant and more demanding than ever before, while at the same time immensely raising the prestige of the Kremlin.

We do not think the Western Allies are dreaming of any such deal. But they must beware of letting an impression take root in Western Europe today.

Then, there are some signs indeed that the Russians will welcome an opportunity to reconsider the status of Europe. They cannot be too happy over the way things are going in Germany or over the increasing instability of their eastern empire. Yugoslavia is a problem and so is Poland. The Communists in Greece are losing ground and there is a possibility even that they will be actually liquidated by the government forces. Under all these conditions the Soviet may be ready for some new bargaining, not only because of the prospect it could obtain certain concessions but because a graceful way out of immediate troubles in Berlin would thus be provided.

She Belonged To A Great Newspaper Family

There will be widespread and legitimate public interest in the will of Eleanor Medill Patterson, the late owner and publisher of the Washington Times-Herald.

Mrs. Patterson was a member of the most brilliant newspaper family in America. She had not only accomplished notable results with the Times-Herald but she was a member of the family group which ran the Chicago Tribune and New York News.

The McCormick-Patterson family has had plenty of critics and plenty of enemies. It also has had initiative gumption and ideas. The leading member of the family is Col. McCormick, the publisher of the Chicago Tribune. He has been smeared plenty but fair-minded critics will not deny that he is one of the most colorful and courageous men in American public life. Until recently he had able company in his cousins, Joe Patterson of the New York News and "Cissy" Patterson of the Times-Herald.

What is to happen to important newspapers when the men or women who have managed them for years comes to the end of their lives is a vital question in a country like ours. The management and control of newspapers is usually regarded as a one man job. "Cissy" Patterson hit at the problem for the Times-Herald with characteristic directness by leaving that newspaper to seven of its veteran executives. It will be interesting to see how Mrs. Patterson's plan works out in the newspaper which was her particular creation in the National Capital.

Wheat Straw Paper

Recently a midwest edition of the Chicago Tribune, which goes to 150,000 farmers, was printed on paper made from the straw of wheat, oats and other farm crops. The straw was produced experimentally but it was proved that it can be used as newsprint.

Not a single break occurred during the press run. The new paper was equal in every way to that made from wood pulp. Newspaper workers had difficulty in telling the difference.

Paper made from straw is costlier, although costs would be reduced with volume manufacture. Experts say straw is more adaptable to high quality paper than to newsprint. If so used straw would reduce the drain on wood pulp and result in the production of more paper.

If a market is to be developed for straw, farmers in the great wheat belt would find it necessary to revise their methods. Wheat straw is dumped on the ground from the combines, no attempt being made to save it. Some farmers burn the straw and the stubble, although that is contrary to soil conservation and wind erosion practices.

If wheat straw pulp becomes an important source of paper, some of the large wheat producing states will miss an opportunity if they do not bid for paper mills. The economical method to manufacture paper from wheat straw would be near the source of the raw material.

De Gaulle is waiting on the sidelines. Russia will profit by whatever confusion results.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Infections of the Urinary Tract

The sulfonamides, penicillin, and streptomycin became famous by saving the lives of so many victims of serious illnesses such as pneumonia, peritonitis, and certain forms of meningitis. This has had a tendency to minimize their importance in less dramatic diseases, especially infections in the kidney and bladder. Here too the wonder drugs have proved a boon.

Dr. Van Dellen

First came the sulfas which immediately supplanted several of the old remedies because of their wider field of usefulness against various types of bacteria responsible for urinary infections. They were easy to administer and within two or three days, improvement was noted. But the preparations are incapable of over-powering all species, particularly the most common culprit, the colon bacillus.

Then came penicillin, which was even better than the sulfonamides. It affected gram-positive organisms like the staphylococcus and streptococcus but not the colon bacillus. We had to wait for streptomycin to do this and, after it was introduced, the physician was well armed with ammunition to contend with problems of this kind. This demonstrates the necessity of discovering the causative germ because once found, the ideal treatment can be arranged.

The normal habitat of the colon bacillus is the intestinal tract. It makes its escape through the lymph or blood passageways to the kidneys, which is most likely to occur when the digestive tube is inflamed, resulting in diarrhea. In elderly persons, the complication sometimes accompanies bouts of constipation. Now and then this invader creeps up into the bladder from the outside. When other organisms are at fault, they are thought to originate in the tonsils, teeth, skin, or ears of children. Injury and obstruction of the passageways by kidney stone or prostate trouble also invite urinary infections.

But, regardless of the cause, shortly after the trespassers set up housekeeping in their new locale, pain or discomfort in the loin develops sometimes associated with chills, fever, nausea and vomiting. In addition, changes in urinary function ensue. The majority complain of frequency and some have the feeling that the bladder is full but only small amounts of urine will pass. Burning or pain often exists, particularly when the bladder is main point of involvement. The urine is usually turbid and, when tested under the microscope, contains pus cells, red blood corpuscles and bacteria. As a rule, unless treated, symptoms last from 5 to 14 days.

Many individuals harbor a low grade inflammation in this area because in most cases, the original infection was never controlled completely. The patient may be unaware of the disturbance, and lead a normal, healthy life and the condition is discovered only on submitting to life insurance or a routine checkup. Others are bothered now and then with chills and fever along with discomfort in the back and urinary manifestations.

When infections in the bladder and kidney fail to respond as they should or recur at periodic intervals, a more thorough examination is advisable as obstruction, an anomaly, or stone may exist; occasionally damage resulting from childbirth is the culprit. At any rate, the disorder should never be left unattended because ultimately the kidneys may be impaired permanently, with high blood pressure and other allied maladies.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

When you read this, you don't have to drop everything. . .just drop a nickel. At the Hotel Sherman in Chicago they have recently held the "coin machine show."

It was a sort of museum of science and industry with slots.

It was a joint operation built by America's leading scientists and supervised by a man from Fort Knox.

Among the ingenious devices exhibited were:

A soup vendor machine that gives you a cup of hot soup for a nickel. . .and with it a wonderful labor-saving device that automatically squirts some on your tie.

They also had a new athletic scale that works for a penny. . . and not only tells your weight, but how strong your back is, what kind of Indian wrestler you are, and how strong a handshake you've got. They were going to have it figure out your income tax too, but Joel Kupperman refused to get inside.

Another outsanding device was the coin-operated typewriter. This is the only machine that lets you put the touch on it.

And they had a nickel jukebox that plays two-minute records instead of the old-fashioned, three-minute kind. Of course, it's embarassing to the manufacturers every time a crooner comes out and sings, "Give Me Five Minutes More."

Big Business Predicted Lower Prices If OPA Was Killed In 1946; Dewey Could-n't Make A Fraternity At University Of Michigan; Truman Irked

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—Here are some predictions some people would like to forget — this time from barons of business who lobbied so hard in the summer of 1946 to kill OPA:

Wesley Hardenberg, President, the American Meat Institute:

"What is needed is for Congress to do away entirely with all OPA meat and livestock price regulations of every description so that consumers again may get the kind of meat they want, when they want it, at a fair competitive market."

John E. Jaeger, President, National Association of Retail Grocers told the American Wholesale Grocers Association:

"We (retail grocers) feel that the time has arrived when . . . actions must be taken . . . to prevent renewal of the Price Control Act. Competition will benefit the consumer by making available ample food at reasonable prices."

Arthur Bruce, President, National Lumber Manufacturers Association:

"I am personally of the opinion that we would be better off if the Office of Price Administration were to die a natural death June 30th."

Robert R. Wason, President, National Association of Manufacturers:

"If OPA is finally dead, women . . . will now use the canned meats and other goods they have on their shelves to see them through any temporary period of price rises. If OPA is eliminated entirely, prices of automobiles may be expected to reach normal within six months, while rents might take at least a year."

Al Guckenberger, Executive Secretary, New York State Food Merchants Association:

"Prices . . . will level off shortly as they had begun to do last August before controls were reimposed."

Herbert U. Nelson, Executive Vice President, National Association of Real Estate Boards:

"We've got a gang in power who thinks solely of the consumer, and usually in terms of 'protecting' him."

Dewey Was Blackballed

Only a few people know it, but when Tom Dewey was a student at the University of Michigan he was blackballed for membership in the Chi Phi men's fraternity.

Martin Codel, publisher of Television Digest, and Ed Engel, radio expert for the Republican National Committee, got a chuckle over the incident the other day, especially the excuse given by the man who vetoed Dewey.

Codel and Engel were members of the Michigan Glee Club on which Dewey was the star soloist. Dewey was hard up and at first had to borrow Engel's dinner jacket. When his name came before Chi Phi, several of his friends did their best to get Dewey accepted, but one man held out. His reason was: "The guy is poor material. Won't develop."

Today, the man who so appraised Dewey is a peddler of Florida real estate, so unknown that his old college associates can't remember his name, and the man he blackballed may be the next President of the United States.

Note—Though Dewey started out to be a concert singer, he also decided to study law. The singing business, he decided, was too precarious.

His Cabinet Pains President

Visitors who called on President Truman at the White House after Congress opened, found the Chief Executive hopping mad at some of his top executives. He was particularly irate with Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall, Undersecretary of the Army William H. Draper and the Army's Chief of Staff Gen. Omar Bradley.

Truman said he was fed up with Royall and Draper for their sabotage of White House policies. Draper's policy of rebuilding Germany at the expense of her neighbors and Secretary Royall's inept handling of Army racial discrimination had got under his skin.

The President was more hurt than angry at the way his fellow Missourian, General Bradley had reaffirmed segregation and the Army caste system 24 hours after his commander-in-chief had issued an executive order curbing segregation. Truman remarked to close friends that he might have expected trouble from many others, but not from Bradley.

Bradley's Real Statement

Later, however, the President learned the real facts about General Bradley's statement and he felt better. The Chief of Staff had left for Fort Knox, Ky., without seeing the afternoon papers in which Truman issued his segregation order. Next day Bradley got up at 6 A. M., and at 7:30 went into the conference at which he made his segregation remark—again without reading the papers.

Actually, Bradley's remark about segregation was taken out of context, since most of the conference dealt with improving human relationships in the Army between all groups. One of the most interesting speeches was made by Texas-born Maj. Gen. Roderick Allen, who told about the excellent relations between White and Colored troops in his 3rd Armored Division.

General Allen gave credit for that cooperation to his Negro chaplain, Capt. Osborne E. Scott, and to his Negro hostess, Margaret Collier, the daughter of a regular Army sergeant in the 24th Infantry, a famous Negro regiment.

Truman's Course Provoked And Intensified Congress Conflict

By MARK SULLIVAN

We enter a period of five months, from now until next January, when a new Congress will take over and a President be inaugurated, whether the present one or another. A survey of the state of the nation as it enters this period would say we are likely to see exceptional strain, going so far as danger.

The government is divided, the Congress Republican, the President a Democrat, and the two in acute disagreement. During the first three months, until November, we shall not know who is to be the next President, and will be in a bitterly partisan campaign to determine. The campaign will be given complexity and added bitterness by the existence of a third party which does not support the government's foreign policy, and by a bitter cleavage within the Democratic Party. After the election—assuming, as is most probable that the Republican candidate will be elected—will be two months of suspense and interregnum. For any foreign enemy, or any domestic enemy of our form of government, these five months are a period of ideal opportunity.

Face Two Dangers

In this condition we face two dangers—the foreign one, our relation to Russia; the domestic one, inflation. Contrary to common assumption, the two are not separable. The good intention which says we can fight a political campaign on domestic issues and be united on the foreign one, may not be fully tenable in the present condition.

For the basic purpose of Russia which we combat is to communize the world. And that purpose would be as well served by calamitous inflation in the United States, ending in economic collapse, as by any military or other action by Russia. How our two dangers are mingled is expressed in the report of the official Council of Economic Advisors, transmitted to the President and by him to Congress on July 30th. In order to combat extension of Communism in Europe, we are sending billions of dollars to the nations of Western Europe, through the European Recovery Program. But the Economic Council frankly admits:

"We are deliberately subjecting ourselves to inflationary pressures on the domestic economy in the short run, in order to contribute to international security . . . in the long run."

Here we face this double danger, foreign threat intermingled with domestic inflation, at a time when our form of government prescribes an election; at a time also when our two-party system has brought it about that the legislative branch of government is controlled by one party, the executive by another. It is a supreme test of the capacity of our form of government and our political system to endure.

The holding of an election is inevitable, the Constitution prescribes it. But the conflict inherent between a President of one party and a Congress of the other could have been ameliorated, perhaps still might be. President Truman's course, instead of amerliorating, provoked and intensified it.

The mere calling of a special session to sit during a campaign was novel and provocative. No other President has done it since Franklin Pierce, 92 years ago; we passed through the Civil War and the First and Second World Wars without a special session of Congress during a campaign.

Truman Widened Split

However Mr. Truman may have felt this special session to be desirable, the manner of his calling it was either unthinkingly reckless or deliberately provocative. He first toured the country denouncing the Congress as the worst or second worst in our history, a statement historically grotesque. Then he made his announcement of the call in a violently partisan political speech of acceptance to the Democratic National Convention.

Mere competence in the administration of the Presidency would have suggested a procedure about calling a special session. It would have been to consult the leaders of Congress, those of the President's own party and those of the Republican majority. Probably they would not have assented, but Mr. Truman would have practiced order and decorum in the relations between the two branches of government. Instead, the course he took, including raucous attacks, at once intensified division in a time of danger and advertised the division to those who would take advantage of it.

The coming five months are a period during which we shall have special need of the reliance expressed in the saying that God looks after children, drunken men and the United States.

Baering Down On The News

Newfoundland voted for confederation with Canada and will become a province of that country. We have a big stake up in that neck-of-the-timber.

We got it trading bases-for-destroyers. We gave England fifty over-age cans. In return we got the same number of under-age landing fields.

It's right on the bee-line in the next stinging tournament. Newfoundland might apply for statehood for the fun of voting this November.

We may argue and yell but we are just one big family. And we do get on. I mean each other's nerves.

Republicans Strike Vein Of Politican Ammunition

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—Politically speaking, President Truman can't be very happy over his maneuver in calling an extra session of Congress in the midst of the campaign. For the Republicans have certainly struck a vein of political ammunition in their exposure of the Communist "spy ring" and the apparent looseness in the checking of loyalty inside the government.

There are few things more spectacular from the standpoint of headlines than spy stories. Likewise, there is nothing on which the American people are more sensitive than the alleged inroads that Communism has made in the political and economic life of the United States.

True enough, much of the stuff is uncorroborated and could conceivably be the result of exaggerations that once in a while come with the detective approach. But there is nevertheless enough substance to cause political capital to be accumulated on the Republican side.

Indicts The Administration

It doesn't matter too much how many of the charges are substantiated in the end—from the standpoint of politics. The headlines have already told that things of military importance could be obtained rather easily and that the check as to the loyalty of Government officials was not overly efficient—in fact was loose enough to let certain persons through the network of checks prescribed by Congress and the executive agencies.

Most important of all is the fact that all the information was available a couple years or more ago and nothing was done by the Truman Administration to expose it. The Department of Justice may argue that it tried to get indictments before a New York grand jury recently and failed. This will hardly be accepted as a good excuse as the same department doesn't hesitate to move from one court jurisdiction to another when it wants to indict some big business men on anti-trust charges.

The presence of Congress in extra session permits two important committees of investigation to function in the biggest limelight that could be desired for headline purposes.

Now the Republicans will want to know why the Democratic administration suppressed all the information it had. The spotlight will turn on key officials and by inference others will be smeared.

It is most unfortunate that in every controversy about who is or who is not a Communist many innocent persons suffer with the guilty. Miss Bentley, for instance, mentions innocent contacts she made to get news in the guise of a news reporter and she also mentions persons who were Communists and paid their party dues through her. All the names are given out together in a hodgepodge of innuendo.

It is this type of thing which has caused so much criticism of the House un-American Activities Committee. But the answer made, on the other hand, is that investigating committees work under considerable handicap. They are being refused the information in the files of government agencies and President Truman himself has declined to cooperate with Congress on such matters.

Seek Full Pattern Of Disloyalty

So it is natural for the congressional committees to explore in their own irregular way and to attempt by grilling first one witness and then another to piece together bits of evidence in the hope of bringing into the open the full pattern of disloyalty.

The administration is in a hot spot politically as a consequence of the revelations. For every disgruntled vote on prices or the cost of living there are ten votes that can be aroused emotionally when it is considered that information of value to the Russian Communists is permitted to get from the government to Communist agents. This is about as sensitive a spot as can be developed in politics and the administration will have to move fast and aggressively to disentangle itself from the web of inference which the charges of looseness and inefficiency, made before the congressional committees, have woven into a general pattern affecting many agencies of the government.

Many a criminal indictment has been made by grand juries on much less evidence than has already been uncovered and it would not be surprising if the convening of special grand juries in Washington may yet be required to bring about through judicial processes the sifting of truth and falsity, guilt and innocence. Canada had her spy-ring expose and America may have the makings of another, though it would be wise for dispassionate observers to wait till all the evidence is in before jumping to conclusions about particular individuals whose names have been in headlines.

Presidential Candidates

The American system differs from the British essentially in party responsibility. Under the British system, the Prime Minister is the chosen leader of his party. Should his party lose confidence in him, he would cease to be Prime Minister. He is elected only as a member of Parliament; it is his position in the party that gives him his pre-eminence. This is true of every member of the British Cabinet.

In the United States, the President is chosen in his own person. He may not even be a bona fide member of the party he appears to represent, as Wendell Willkie was not, or he may be a non-party person as Dr. Eisenhower undoubtedly is. He may not be the top-ranking leader of his party, which was true of Harding, Collidge, Hoover and Woodrow Wilson. He may contend against such a party leader as Al Smith, which Roosevelt did.

The result is that the American people vote for a man, not a party, a personality, not a principle. Franklin D. Roosevelt faced this fact candidly, organized a personal amalgam of dissident elements, forced his party to his will and ignored its existence.

The Constitution provides for a Vice President. Usually only secondary persons are willing to take this position because a Vice President has nothing to do except preside over the Senate—a body in which he has no voice (except in a tie) and no authority. He is generally ignored while alive and forgotten at death. Important party leaders usually decline the honor.

Yet, within a few minutes after a President dies, the Vice President becomes the most important person in the country. Without the consent of the people, or of Congress, or of his own political party, he comes into possession of all the powers and authority of the President. Often selected for no good reason, he is in a position to do with his powers as he wills.

Lincoln was followed by Andrew Johnson in this manner. Johnson was unfit and fouled up Reconstruction after the Civil War. Garfield was followed by Chester Arthur, who was a nonentity and a party hack. McKinley was followed by Theodore Roosevelt, who, while he made a wonderful President, was so little in tune with his party that he ultimately split it into factions. Harding was followed by Coolidge, who did better than his predecessor.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt was followed by Harry Truman, who is beyond question maladroit, doing good things in a bad way, and who has split his party beyond redemption on basic national issues which require the most delicate handling.

Were the political party a responsible agency, its outstanding leader would serve as President and it would select his successor as a party procedure. But the political party plays no part in the structure of our government. The Chairman, for instance, of the National Committee of each party, is not a member of the government, unless he is appointed Postmaster-General. He is in no way responsible for the party's governmental activities, which are principally in Congress.

There is another hiatus in our system which is dangerous, namely, that a candidate is nominated in June or July, elected or defeated in November, and takes office in January.

The candidate in office can, as Harry Truman is now doing, use the Presidency for campaign purposes. Were a President vile enough to do it, he could bring on a national crisis, even a war, to promote his election. The power is his.

The candidate out of office enjoys no power and, until he assumes office, no responsibility. For instance, Mr. Dewey is not the leader of his party in Congress. Chosen candidate by his party at its convention, he nevertheless has no direct leadership of its members of Congress. Such leadership rests with Senators Taft, Vandenberg and Wherry and with Representatives Martin and Halleck. They may or may not consult him as they choose.

They may find it advantageous, as they do today, to have party unity or they may pursue their own courses. The candidate may plead, cajole, entreat, but he cannot lead until he is elected.

That is the American system—and it could stand, I am sure, some improvement.

Today's Talk

God's Lady's Slipper

As I write I am looking into the extraordinary face of a flower I plucked from the path to my Nova Scotia island Lodge. It is a well-known flower, but little known! Its familiar name is Pink Lady's Slipper; Moccasin Flower (Cypri pedium acaule). It has a small slit in front of a circular opening. It loves the woods, this flower, and I have seen several today.

The most interesting fact about this common flower is that it is fertilized by the bumblebee. Its only ntrance is by this front slit opening. It has to edge its way in—and I wonder if it realizes what a palace it then enjoys? It's a wonder that this cumbersome old fellow ever gets into such a beautiful place! But he does, and then he wanders around and finally sees his way out through an upper sky-light, after a hearty meal, but as he leaves the small upper opening he comes in contact with a sticky stigma armed with tiny hairs, which removes any pollen he may have on his back; and then, as he makes his last effort to leave, another anther blocks his way, waiting to clap its load of pollen on his back.

This wonderful flower, God's own creation—as all flowers are—is something to ponder when folks talk about there being no God in the world. Ask such a one to make one of these flowers. Its architecture is perfect. Its coloring delicate and perfect in balance and a thing of beauty in every way. Its symmetry of arrangement is also perfect. The orchid is no less beautiful—and yet this one before me I picked from the path to my summer Lodge! It could easily grace the covering of a Queen's heart! And its cost was nothing!

You have to walk to the forest or the desert or the jungle to accurately get the whisper of God's voice. That's the greatest secret as to why I first decided to take up a few weeks of my life each summer here at "Weskawenaak." It's a happy change, why yes—but it's more than that. It's a rebirth of spirit. It's going to school again—graduate study in God's great University of Nature.

New Offer To Russia May Be Made By Western Powers

Since so many other four-power conferences have failed, it is probably the part of wisdom not to expect too much of the present plan of the western powers to get the Soviet around the council table for a discussion of the entire European question. Still and all the effort is worth making and it may just happen that the Russians will be willing to negotiate.

At least there has been no word out of Moscow to date which even remotely suggests that the overtures of the United States, Great Britain and France will be rejected. In fact probably before this is read announcement may be forthcoming that Premier Stalin has agreed to meet with diplomats of the three powers. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov agreed to consider the request for such a meeting. This development has come about despite the fact that on some previous occasions the Soviet announced flatly in advance there was nothing to talk about and that any meeting of minds was therefore a waste of time. In the present instance it is keeping an open mind although it probably knows what the West will propose. This could be a good omen.

On the other hand, a number of well-informed men in Western Europe took the willingness of Washington and London to negotiate as evidence that they are prepared to yield in Berlin. Some men in London who are completely dry behind the ears suspect that a deal is in the making whereby the Western powers would evacuate Berlin, in return, say, for a Soviet agreement to make peace with Austria and withdraw her troops there.

It need hardly be said that not one word spoken in official Washington or London encourages any such belief. All Western leaders have asserted firmly, even vociferously, that "we will not be coerced." But this is a suspicious world, and the offer to negotiate on the future of the Ruhr has whetted the suspicion that a deal of some kind is in the making.

The prevailing view in Western Europe is that Russia does not want a war now but is determined either to drive the Western powers from their Berlin treaty positions, or, preferably, to let them remain in return for a voice in the distribution of Ruhr products. Should Russia win such a voice—and veto power—in return for reopening Berlin's food and fuel routes, her blockade would have paid huge dividends. Far from assuring peace, that result would make Russia more intransigeant and more demanding than ever before, while at the same time immensely raising the prestige of the Kremlin.

We do not think the Western Allies are dreaming of any such deal. But they must beware of letting an impression take root in Western Europe today.

Then, there are some signs indeed that the Russians will welcome an opportunity to reconsider the status of Europe. They cannot be too happy over the way things are going in Germany or over the increasing instability of their eastern empire. Yugoslavia is a problem and so is Poland. The Communists in Greece are losing ground and there is a possibility even that they will be actually liquidated by the government forces. Under all these conditions the Soviet may be ready for some new bargaining, not only because of the prospect it could obtain certain concessions but because a graceful way out of immediate troubles in Berlin would thus be provided.

She Belonged To A Great Newspaper Family

There will be widespread and legitimate public interest in the will of Eleanor Medill Patterson, the late owner and publisher of the Washington Times-Herald.

Mrs. Patterson was a member of the most brilliant newspaper family in America. She had not only accomplished notable results with the Times-Herald but she was a member of the family group which ran the Chicago Tribune and New York News.

The McCormick-Patterson family has had plenty of critics and plenty of enemies. It also has had initiative gumption and ideas. The leading member of the family is Col. McCormick, the publisher of the Chicago Tribune. He has been smeared plenty but fair-minded critics will not deny that he is one of the most colorful and courageous men in American public life. Until recently he had able company in his cousins, Joe Patterson of the New York News and "Cissy" Patterson of the Times-Herald.

What is to happen to important newspapers when the men or women who have managed them for years comes to the end of their lives is a vital question in a country like ours. The management and control of newspapers is usually regarded as a one man job. "Cissy" Patterson hit at the problem for the Times-Herald with characteristic directness by leaving that newspaper to seven of its veteran executives. It will be interesting to see how Mrs. Patterson's plan works out in the newspaper which was her particular creation in the National Capital.

Wheat Straw Paper

Recently a midwest edition of the Chicago Tribune, which goes to 150,000 farmers, was printed on paper made from the straw of wheat, oats and other farm crops. The straw was produced experimentally but it was proved that it can be used as newsprint.

Not a single break occurred during the press run. The new paper was equal in every way to that made from wood pulp. Newspaper workers had difficulty in telling the difference.

Paper made from straw is costlier, although costs would be reduced with volume manufacture. Experts say straw is more adaptable to high quality paper than to newsprint. If so used straw would reduce the drain on wood pulp and result in the production of more paper.

If a market is to be developed for straw, farmers in the great wheat belt would find it necessary to revise their methods. Wheat straw is dumped on the ground from the combines, no attempt being made to save it. Some farmers burn the straw and the stubble, although that is contrary to soil conservation and wind erosion practices.

If wheat straw pulp becomes an important source of paper, some of the large wheat producing states will miss an opportunity if they do not bid for paper mills. The economical method to manufacture paper from wheat straw would be near the source of the raw material

De Gaulle is waiting on the sidelines. Russia will profit by whatever confusion results.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Infections of the Urinary Tract

The sulfonamides, penicillin, and streptomycin became famous by saving the lives of so many victims of serious illnesses such as pneumonia, peritonitis, and certain forms of meningitis. This has had a tendency to minimize their importance in less dramatic diseases, especially infections in the kidney and bladder. Here too the wonder drugs have proved a boon.

Dr. Van Dellen

First came the sulfas which immediately supplanted several of the old remedies because of their wider field of usefulness against various types of bacteria responsible for urinary infections. They were easy to administer and within two or three days, improvement was noted. But the preparations are incapable of over-powering all species, particularly the most common culprit, the colon bacillus.

Then came penicillin, which was even better than the sulfonamides. It affected gram-positive organisms like the staphylococcus and streptococcus but not the colon bacillus. We had to wait for streptomycin to do this and, after it was introduced, the physician was well armed with ammunition to contend with problems of this kind. This demonstrates the necessity of discovering the causative germ because once found, the ideal treatment can be arranged.

The normal habitat of the colon bacillus is the intestinal tract. It makes its escape through the lymph or blood passageways to the kidneys, which is most likely to occur when the digestive tube is inflamed, resulting in diarrhea. In elderly persons, the complication sometimes accompanies bouts of constipation. Now and then this invader creeps up into the bladder from the outside. When other organisms are at fault, they are thought to originate in the tonsils, teeth, skin, or ears of children. Injury and obstruction of the passageways by kidney stone or prostate trouble also invite urinary infections.

But, regardless of the cause, shortly after the trespassers set up housekeeping in their new locale, pain or discomfort in the loin develops sometimes associated with chills, fever, nausea and vomiting. In addition, changes in urinary function ensue. The majority complain of frequency and some have the feeling that the bladder is full but only small amounts of urine will pass. Burning or pain often exists, particularly when the bladder is main point of involvement. The urine is usually turbid and, when tested under the microscope, contains pus cells, red blood corpuscles and bacteria. As a rule, unless treated, symptoms last from 5 to 14 days.

Many individuals harbor a low grade inflammation in this area because in most cases, the original infection was never controlled completely. The patient may be unaware of the disturbance, and lead a normal, healthy life and the condition is discovered only on submitting to life insurance or a routine checkup. Others are bothered now and then with chills and fever along with discomfort in the back and urinary manifestations.

When infections in the bladder and kidney fail to respond as they should or recur at periodic intervals, a more thorough examination is advisable as obstruction, an anomaly, or stone may exist; occasionally damage resulting from childbirth is the culprit. At any rate, the disorder should never be left unattended because ultimately the kidneys may be impaired permanently, with high blood pressure and other allied maladies.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

When you read this, you don't have to drop everything. . just drop a nickel. At the Hotel Sherman in Chicago they have recently held the "coin machine show."

It was a sort of museum of science and industry with slots.

It was a joint operation built by America's leading scientists and supervised by a man from Fort Knox.

Among the ingenious devices exhibited were:

A soup vendor machine that gives you a cup of hot soup for a nickel. . .and with it a wonderful labor-saving device that automatically squirts some on your tie.

They also had a new athletic scale that works for a penny. . . and not only tells your weight, but how strong your back is, what kind of Indian wrestler you are, and how strong a handshake you've got. They were going to have it figure out your income tax too, but Joel Kupperman refused to get inside.

Another outsanding device was the coin-operated typewriter. This is the only machine that lets you put the touch on it.

And they had a nickel jukebox that plays two-minute records instead of the old-fashioned, three-minute kind. Of course, it's embarassing to the manufacturers every time a crooner comes out and sings, "Give Me Five Minutes More."

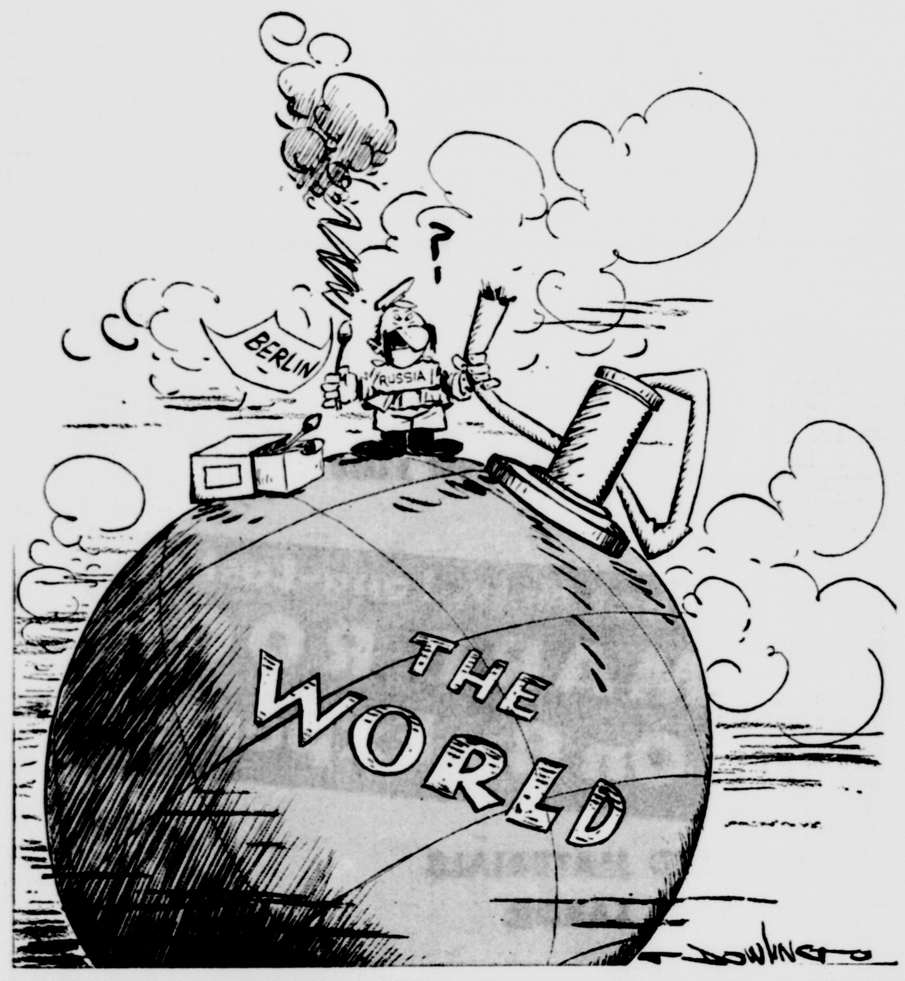
NOW FOR THE JACKPOT QUESTION



The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Big Business Predicted Lower Prices If OPA Was Killed In 1946; Dewey Couldn't Make A Fraternity At University Of Michigan; Truman Irked

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—Here are some predictions some people would like to forget — this time from barons of business who lobbied so hard in the summer of 1946 to kill OPA:

Wesley Hardenberg, President, the American Meat Institute:

"What is needed is for Congress to do away entirely with all OPA meat and livestock price regulations of every description so that consumers again may get the kind of meat they want, when they want it, at a fair competitive market."

John E. Jaeger, President, National Association of Retail Grocers told the American Wholesale Grocers Association:

"We (retail grocers) feel that the time has arrived when . . . actions must be taken . . . to prevent renewal of the Price Control Act. Competition will benefit the consumer by making available ample food at reasonable prices."

Arthur Bruce, President, National Lumber Manufacturers Association:

"I am personally of the opinion that we would be better off if the Office of Price Administration were to die a natural death June 30th."

Robert R. Wason, President, National Association of Manufacturers:

"If OPA is finally dead, women . . . will now use the canned meats and other goods they have on their shelves to see them through any temporary period of price rises. If OPA is eliminated entirely, prices of automobiles may be expected to reach normal within six months, while rents might take at least a year."

Al Guckenberger, Executive Secretary, New York State Food Merchants Association:

"Prices . . . will level off shortly as they had begun to do last August before controls were reimposed."

Herbert U. Nelson, Executive Vice President, National Association of Real Estate Boards:

"We've got a gang in power who thinks solely of the consumer, and usually in terms of 'protecting' him."

Dewey Was Blackballed

Only a few people know it, but when Tom Dewey was a student at the University of Michigan he was blackballed for membership in the Chi Phi men's fraternity.

Martin Codel, publisher of Television Digest, and Ed Engel, radio expert for the Republican National Committee, got a chuckle over the incident the other day, especially the excuse given by the man who vetoed Dewey.

Codel and Engel were members of the Michigan Glee Club on which Dewey was the star soloist. Dewey was hard up and at first had to borrow Engel's dinner jacket. When his name came before Chi Phi, several of his friends did their best to get Dewey accepted, but one man held out. His reason was: "The guy is poor material. Won't develop."

Today, the man who so appraised Dewey is a peddler of Florida real estate, so unknown that his old college associates can't remember his name, and the man he blackballed may be the next President of the United States.

Note—Though Dewey started out to be a concert singer, he also decided to study law. The singing business, he decided, was too precarious.

His Cabinet Pains President

Visitors who called on President Truman at the White House after Congress opened, found the Chief Executive hopping mad at some of his top executives. He was particularly irate with Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall, Undersecretary of the Army William H. Draper and the Army's Chief of Staff Gen. Omar Bradley.

Truman said he was fed up with Royall and Draper for their sabotage of White House policies. Draper's policy of rebuilding Germany at the expense of her neighbors and Secretary Royall's inept handling of Army racial discrimination had got under his skin.

The President was more hurt than angry at the way his fellow Missourian, General Bradley had reaffirmed segregation and the Army caste system 24 hours after his commander-in-chief had issued an executive order curbing segregation. Truman remarked to close friends that he might have expected trouble from many others, but not from Bradley.

Bradley's Real Statement

Later, however, the President learned the real facts about General Bradley's statement and he felt better. The Chief of Staff had left for Fort Knox, Ky., without seeing the afternoon papers in which Truman issued his segregation order. Next day Bradley got up at 6 A. M., and at 7:30 went into the conference at which he made his segregation remark—again without reading the papers.

Actually, Bradley's remark about segregation was taken out of context, since most of the conference dealt with improving human relationships in the Army between all groups. One of the most interesting speeches was made by Texas-born Maj. Gen. Roderick Allen, who told about the excellent relations between White and Colored troops in his 3rd Armored Division.

General Allen gave credit for that cooperation to his Negro chaplain, Capt. Osborne E. Scott, and to his Negro hostess, Margaret Collier, the daughter of a regular Army sergeant in the 24th Infantry, a famous Negro regiment.

Truman's Course Provoked And Intensified Congress Conflict

By MARK SULLIVAN

We enter a period of five months, from now until next January, when a new Congress will take over and a President be inaugurated, whether the present one or another. A survey of the state of the nation as it enters this period would say we are likely to see exceptional strain, going so far as danger.

The government is divided, the Congress Republican, the President a Democrat, and the two in acute disagreement. During the first three months, until November, we shall not know who is to be the next President, and will be in a bitterly partisan campaign to determine. The campaign will be given complexity and added bitterness by the existence of a third party which does not support the government's foreign policy, and by a bitter cleavage within the Democratic Party. After the election—assuming, as is most probable that the Republican candidate will be elected—will be two months of suspense and interregnum. For any foreign enemy, or any domestic enemy of our form of government, these five months are a period of ideal opportunity.

Face Two Dangers

In this condition we face two dangers—the foreign one, our relation to Russia; the domestic one, inflation. Contrary to common assumption, the two are not separable. The good intention which says we can fight a political campaign on domestic issues and be united on the foreign one, may not be fully tenable in the present condition.

For the basic purpose of Russia which we combat is to communize the world. And that purpose would be as well served by calamitous inflation in the United States, ending in economic collapse, as by any military or other action by Russia. How our two dangers are mingled is expressed in the report of the official Council of Economic Advisors, transmitted to the President and by him to Congress on July 30th. In order to combat extension of Communism in Europe, we are sending billions of dollars to the nations of Western Europe, through the European Recovery Program. But the Economic Council frankly admits:

"We are deliberately subjecting ourselves to inflationary pressures on the domestic economy in the short run, in order to contribute to international security . . . in the long run."

Here we face this double danger, foreign threat intermingled with domestic inflation, at a time when our form of government prescribes an election; at a time also when our two-party system has brought it about that the legislative branch of government is controlled by one party, the executive by another. It is a supreme test of the capacity of our form of government and our political system to endure.

The holding of an election is inevitable, the Constitution prescribes it. But the conflict inherent between a President of one party and a Congress of the other could have been ameliorated, perhaps still might be. President Truman's course, instead of amerliorating, provoked and intensified it.

The mere calling of a special session to sit during a campaign was novel and provocative. No other President has done it since Franklin Pierce, 92 years ago; we passed through the Civil War and the First and Second World Wars without a special session of Congress during a campaign.

Truman Widened Split

However Mr. Truman may have felt this special session to be desirable, the manner of his calling it was either unthinkingly reckless or deliberately provocative. He first toured the country denouncing the Congress as the worst or second worst in our history, a statement historically grotesque. Then he made his announcement of the call in a violently partisan political speech of acceptance to the Democratic National Convention.

Mere competence in the administration of the Presidency would have suggested a procedure about calling a special session. It would have been to consult the leaders of Congress, those of the President's own party and those of the Republican majority. Probably they would not have assented, but Mr. Truman would have practiced order and decorum in the relations between the two branches of government. Instead, the course he took, including raucous attacks, at once intensified division in a time of danger and advertised the division to those who would take advantage of it.

The coming five months are a period during which we shall have special need of the reliance expressed in the saying that God looks after children, drunken men and the United States.

Baering Down On The News

Newfoundland voted for confederation with Canada and will become a province of that country. We have a big stake up in that neck-of-the-timber.

We got it trading bases-for-destroyers. We gave England fifty over-age cans. In return we got the same number of under-age landing fields.

It's right on the bee-line in the next stinging tournament. Newfoundland might apply for statehood for the fun of voting this November.

We may argue and yell but we are just one big family. And we do get on. I mean each other's nerves.

Republicans Strike Vein Of Politican Ammunition

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—Politically speaking, President Truman can't be very happy over his maneuver in calling an extra session of Congress in the midst of the campaign. For the Republicans have certainly struck a vein of political ammunition in their exposure of the Communist "spy ring" and the apparent looseness in the checking of loyalty inside the government.

There are few things more spectacular from the standpoint of headlines than spy stories. Likewise, there is nothing on which the American people are more sensitive than the alleged inroads that Communism has made in the political and economic life of the United States.

True enough, much of the stuff is uncorroborated and could conceivably be the result of exaggerations that once in a while come with the detective approach. But there is nevertheless enough substance to cause political capital to be accumulated on the Republican side.

Indicts The Administration

It doesn't matter too much how many of the charges are substantiated in the end—from the standpoint of politics. The headlines have already told that things of military importance could be obtained rather easily and that the check as to the loyalty of Government officials was not overly efficient—in fact was loose enough to let certain persons through the network of checks prescribed by Congress and the executive agencies.

Most important of all is the fact that all the information was available a couple years or more ago and nothing was done by the Truman Administration to expose it. The Department of Justice may argue that it tried to get indictments before a New York grand jury recently and failed. This will hardly be accepted as a good excuse as the same department doesn't hesitate to move from one court jurisdiction to another when it wants to indict some big business men on anti-trust charges.

The presence of Congress in extra session permits two important committees of investigation to function in the biggest limelight that could be desired for headline purposes.

Now the Republicans will want to know why the Democratic administration suppressed all the information it had. The spotlight will turn on key officials and by inference others will be smeared.

It is most unfortunate that in every controversy about who is or who is not a Communist many innocent persons suffer with the guilty. Miss Bentley, for instance, mentions innocent contacts she made to get news in the guise of a news reporter and she also mentions persons who were Communists and paid their party dues through her. All the names are given out together in a hodgepodge of innuendo.

It is this type of thing which has caused so much criticism of the House un-American Activities Committee. But the answer made, on the other hand, is that investigating committees work under considerable handicap. They are being refused the information in the files of government agencies and President Truman himself has declined to cooperate with Congress on such matters.

Seek Full Pattern Of Disloyalty

So it is natural for the congressional committees to explore in their own irregular way and to attempt by grilling first one witness and then another to piece together bits of evidence in the hope of bringing into the open the full pattern of disloyalty.

The administration is in a hot spot politically as a consequence of the revelations. For every disgruntled vote on prices or the cost of living there are ten votes that can be aroused emotionally when it is considered that information of value to the Russian Communists is permitted to get from the government to Communist agents. This is about as sensitive a spot as can be developed in politics and the administration will have to move fast and aggressively to disentangle itself from the web of inference which the charges of looseness and inefficiency, made before the congressional committees, have woven into a general pattern affecting many agencies of the government.

Many a criminal indictment has been made by grand juries on much less evidence than has already been uncovered and it would not be surprising if the convening of special grand juries in Washington may yet be required to bring about through judicial processes the sifting of truth and falsity, guilt and innocence. Canada had her spy-ring expose and America may have the makings of another, though it would be wise for dispassionate observers to wait till all the evidence is in before jumping to conclusions about particular individuals whose names have been in headlines.

Presidential Candidates

The American system differs from the British essentially in party responsibility. Under the British system, the Prime Minister is the chosen leader of his party. Should his party lose confidence in him, he would cease to be Prime Minister. He is elected only as a member of Parliament; it is his position in the party that gives him his pre-eminence. This is true of every member of the British Cabinet.

In the United States, the President is chosen in his own person. He may not even be a bona fide member of the party he appears to represent, as Wendell Willkie was not, or he may be a non-party person as Dr. Eisenhower undoubtedly is. He may not be the top-ranking leader of his party, which was true of Harding, Collidge, Hoover and Woodrow Wilson. He may contend against such a party leader as Al Smith, which Roosevelt did.

The result is that the American people vote for a man, not a party, a personality, not a principle. Franklin D. Roosevelt faced this fact candidly, organized a personal amalgam of dissident elements, forced his party to his will and ignored its existence.

The Constitution provides for a Vice President. Usually only secondary persons are willing to take this position because a Vice President has nothing to do except preside over the Senate—a body in which he has no voice (except in a tie) and no authority. He is generally ignored while alive and forgotten at death. Important party leaders usually decline the honor.

Yet, within a few minutes after a President dies, the Vice President becomes the most important person in the country. Without the consent of the people, or of Congress, or of his own political party, he comes into possession of all the powers and authority of the President. Often selected for no good reason, he is in a position to do with his powers as he wills.

Lincoln was followed by Andrew Johnson in this manner. Johnson was unfit and fouled up Reconstruction after the Civil War. Garfield was followed by Chester Arthur, who was a nonentity and a party hack. McKinley was followed by Theodore Roosevelt, who, while he made a wonderful President, was so little in tune with his party that he ultimately split it into factions. Harding was followed by Coolidge, who did better than his predecessor.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt was followed by Harry Truman, who is beyond question maladroit, doing good things in a bad way, and who has split his party beyond redemption on basic national issues which require the most delicate handling.

Were the political party a responsible agency, its outstanding leader would serve as President and it would select his successor as a party procedure. But the political party plays no part in the structure of our government. The Chairman, for instance, of the National Committee of each party, is not a member of the government, unless he is appointed Postmaster-General. He is in no way responsible for the party's governmental activities, which are principally in Congress.

There is another hiatus in our system which is dangerous, namely, that a candidate is nominated in June or July, elected or defeated in November, and takes office in January.

The candidate in office can, as Harry Truman is now doing, use the Presidency for campaign purposes. Were a President vile enough to do it, he could bring on a national crisis, even a war, to promote his election. The power is his.

The candidate out of office enjoys no power and, until he assumes office, no responsibility. For instance, Mr. Dewey is not the leader of his party in Congress. Chosen candidate by his party at its convention, he nevertheless has no direct leadership of its members of Congress. Such leadership rests with Senators Taft, Vandenberg and Wherry and with Representatives Martin and Halleck. They may or may not consult him as they choose.

They may find it advantageous, as they do today, to have party unity or they may pursue their own courses. The candidate may plead, cajole, entreat, but he cannot lead until he is elected.

That is the American system—and it could stand, I am sure, some improvement.

God's Lady's Slipper

As I write I am looking into the extraordinary face of a flower I plucked from the path to my Nova Scotia island Lodge. It is a well-known flower, but little known! Its familiar name is Pink Lady's Slipper; Moccasin Flower (Cypri pedium acaule). It has a small slit in front of a circular opening. It loves the woods, this flower, and I have seen several today.

The most interesting fact about this common flower is that it is fertilized by the bumblebee. Its only ntrance is by this front slit opening. It has to edge its way in—and I wonder if it realizes what a palace it then enjoys? It's a wonder that this cumbersome old fellow ever gets into such a beautiful place! But he does, and then he wanders around and finally sees his way out through an upper sky-light, after a hearty meal, but as he leaves the small upper opening he comes in contact with a sticky stigma armed with tiny hairs, which removes any pollen he may have on his back; and then, as he makes his last effort to leave, another anther blocks his way, waiting to clap its load of pollen on his back.

This wonderful flower, God's own creation—as all flowers are—is something to ponder when folks talk about there being no God in the world. Ask such a one to make one of these flowers. Its architecture is perfect. Its coloring delicate and perfect in balance and a thing of beauty in every way. Its symmetry of arrangement is also perfect. The orchid is no less beautiful—and yet this one before me I picked from the path to my summer Lodge! It could easily grace the covering of a Queen's heart! And its cost was nothing!

You have to walk to the forest or the desert or the jungle to accurately get the whisper of God's voice. That's the greatest secret as to why I first decided to take up a few weeks of my life each summer here at "Weskawenaak." It's a happy change, why yes—but it's more than that. It's a rebirth of spirit. It's going to school again—graduate study in God's great University of Nature.

Her companion, Bart Lisanti, also of Cumberland, whose car she was driving, was given a fine of $15 or 30 days in jail at the same time on a charge of being drunk. He paid the fine and was released.

According to West Virginia State Police, Miss Corey was driving Lisanti's car west on Route 46, about three miles east of Keyser, Friday night when she claimed she became lost, authorities said. Police quoted her as saying that as she passed Reese's Mill, she passed a road sign, stopped the car, and backed up to see if the sign would aid her. As she backed up, the car went over an embankment, turning over.

Trooper Frank Bowley, who investigated, said that no one was injured in the accident, including another woman who was an occupant in the vehicle but who was not held, and her identity was not established.

Sgt. Burns, a native of Cumberland, Md., was a longtime Jap captive, taken prisoner at the fall of Corregidor, May 6, 1942, and liberated September 7, 1945. Five Girls Hurt In Auto Mishap Near Berlin, Pa.

Two Are Admitted To Meyersdale Hospital

MEYERSDALE, Pa.—Two Meyersdale girls were admitted to Hazel McGilvery Hospital here and three others were reported injured late Sunday night following an accident on McDonalton Road two miles east of the borough limits of Berlin.

The girls were returning from a swimming party near Bedford when the crash occurred. The car, a 1946 sedan, was driven, authorities said, by Nancy Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Potter, and failed to negotiate a curve at the bottom of a long grade terminating on Route 31. It turned over about five times.

Faulty brakes were blamed for the accident.

Most seriously injured in the accident was Miss Mary Potter, 18, a cousin of the driver and a student at Baldwin-Wallace College, Cleveland, O.

Mary Potter and Miss Sally Weld remain patients at the hospital, both suffering from cuts about the head and face and body lacerations. Miss Sally Hook, Miss Mary Agnes McKenzie and the driver were discharged from the hospital after being treated in the dispensary.

Mary Potter and Miss Weld were taken to the hospital by the Johnson Ambulance Service, Berlin. Their physician described them as "doing all right" last night.

The car was described as beyond repair.

Mary Potter's parents are vacationing in Bristol, Tenn., and were notified of the accident by telegram.

Miss Hook, a student at Waynesburg College, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Hook; Miss Weld, a student at State Teachers College, Towson, Md., is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Weld, and Miss McKenzie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McKenzie.

The driver of the car was graduated from Meyersdale High School in June of this year.

Knipe's Snipe Wins Deep Creek Regatta

Robert Knipe, Pittsburgh, ably demonstrated his skill at the tiller by winning Sunday's race at the Deep Creek Yacht Club.

Knipe, who has been a consistent winner at the helm of other boats in the fleet, was skippering his own boat, a reclaimed hull which has been out of competition since before the war, for the first time.

The race was sailed in a whistling wind and the nine boats had much trouble staying upright in the heavy going. Knipe and his crew, Mrs. Donald B. Grove, Cumberland, won the race in the last hundred yards, beating out Commodore Richard Holben, Frostburg, in his Snipe and Felix Winslow, Washington, who was sailing his Comet which was the scratch boat.

The only mishap was near the end of the race when Dr. Mahan, Morgantown, and Dr. Donald B Grove, Cumberland, who were sailing Dr. Mahan's Snipe, capsized and lost a sail, causing them to withdraw.

The racing committee for the event was Harold H. Muma chairman, assisted by Mrs. Paul Hutson, Jr., and Mrs. John F. Schaidt.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION—Pictured here is the site of the proposed new home of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, on which work was started the latter part of June by M. M. Ward and Sons, local contractors. Located at the corner of West Main and Water Streets, the building will occupy one of the most valuable sites in the community. The basement will contain a kitchen with two large pantries, grill room and storage room. An office room, trophy hall, a public lounge and a private cocktail lounge, all with modern fixtures and appropriate furnishings, will occupy the street floor. The second floor will contain a large banquet hall with a warming pantry. At the main entrance there will be bronze plaques on which will be inscribed the names of the veterans of World Wars I and II who lost their lives during the wars. The new home is being constructed by the Home Corporation of Farrady Post, consisting of Dr. W. O McLane, president; Casper Taylor, vice president; William H. Lemmert, treasurer; Frederick Rowe, secretary and Ralph M. Race, Frank T. Powers, Arthur Norris, Charles Cole and Alfred Drew.

Worker Sues Railway For $7,500 Damages

A damage suit was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Harold Christner for $7,500 against the Western Maryland Railway, for injuries he says he sustained July 31, 1946, when struck by a heavy jack used to lift steel rails.

Christner states in his declaration that he is employed as a trackman by the railway between Garrett and Rockwood, Pa., and that while at work the jack slipped due to negligence of another worker and the plaintiff was struck in the temple and left eye. Christner says he suffered a fractured skull and brain concussion and incurred heavy medical expenses.

visiting the brother and accidentally stumbled and fell between the wall and excavation. The body was so tightly wedged, the chief said, that Dawson could not have escaped and his face lay in the water.

A pair of glasses identified as Dawson's were found on the foundation wall, police said, supporting the theory that he tripped and fell over the wall. Authorities said the drop was between 20 and 30 feet.

Workers said they had not noticed the body during the day's work until they moved to the side of the building late yesterday to do some work.

Police said Dawson was not reported missing, because his wife, Mrs. Robert E. Michael Dawson, believed he was staying with the brother and the brother thought he returned to the Piedmont Street address.

Prosecuting Attorney Vernon E. Rankin said he will determine today if an inquest is necessary.

Besides his widow and brother, Dawson is survived by his father, Charles Richard Dawson, Keyser, and his mother, Mrs. Iva Joy, Martinsburg, W. Va.

A funeral service will be conducted Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the Rodgers Funeral Home with Rev. Pete Salesky, Keyser, officiating. Interment will be in Meadow Point Cemetery.

This issue was voted during the administration of Mayor Olen R. Rice.

Miss Lookabaugh

The judges included Frank McNally, Brooklyn, N. Y.; G. Bland Hoke, Bedford, Pa.; Dean K. S. McKee, Keyser, W. Va.; Mrs. Judith Forbush, Detroit, Mich.; Miss Joan Estap, "Miss West Virginia 1947"; Max Esper, Washington, D. C., and Bradford Fraport, Atlantic City, N. J.

Miss Lookabaugh was "thrilled and excited," she said last night after the coronation. She also showed some excitement, and as she walked down the run-way, her knees almost buckled and she paused to regain her composure. Then she smiled bravely, but as she returned to the stage, Moore loaned her his handkerchief to wipe tears from her eyes so she could pose for the score or more cameramen and news photographers who covered the show.

People in the audience from all communities who had entries said the show was excellent, and the entire audience which filled the auditorium and balcony remained through the three-hour performance without an intermission. It was one of the best exhibits of its kind ever seen staged or attempted here, and scores of persons were heard to voice their approval.

Six area men enlisted in the last week, he added. They are Glenn W. Davis, Vocke Drive; Charles E. DeWitt, Terra Alta, W. Va.; Venecy Silvester, Corinth, W. Va.; William Morgan, Corinth; Richard M. Smith, Romney, W. Va., and Melvin Smith, Berkeley Springs, W. Va.

Hamill Says

State Senator Lawrence Fraley, Oakland, last night termed the whole affair "clearly a misunderstanding."

Men in the Oakland unit, he explained, were perfectly sincere in believing they did not have to go to camp when attendance would work a hardship.

Gen. Purnell, assistant commander of the 29th Division at Camp Ritchie, he said, went off "half-cocked" in the matter which the senator asserted could have been settled satisfactorily had Oakland authorities been contacted.

The state senator said the "high handed" action during church time created quite a stir in Oakland. The citizens of Oakland, he added, did not like the way the whole matter was handled.

Expressing regret at the incident, Senator Fraley said the whole matter could have been straightened out by one man if the National Guard had sent an officer to check on the preparations the recently organized unit was making.

He added he did not think the misunderstanding about camp duty would jeopardize the future of the Oakland unit which has had an attendance average of 80 per cent or better. The unit has had a good record from the start, he emphasized.

It was purely a misunderstanding on the part of our boys, he said, adding that he believed with a newly organized unit such as the Oakland Company, National Guard officers should have checked to see that camp attendance would be satisfactory.

Five Girls Hurt In Auto Mishap Near Berlin, Pa.

Two Are Admitted To Meyersdale Hospital

MEYERSDALE, Pa.—Two Meyersdale girls were admitted to Hazel McGilvery Hospital here and three others were reported injured late Sunday night following an accident on McDonalton Road two miles east of the borough limits of Berlin.

The girls were returning from a swimming party near Bedford when the crash occurred. The car, a 1946 sedan, was driven, authorities said, by Nancy Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Potter, and failed to negotiate a curve at the bottom of a long grade terminating on Route 31. It turned over about five times.

Faulty brakes were blamed for the accident.

Most seriously injured in the accident was Miss Mary Potter, 18, a cousin of the driver and a student at Baldwin-Wallace College, Cleveland, O.

Mary Potter and Miss Sally Weld remain patients at the hospital, both suffering from cuts about the head and face and body lacerations. Miss Sally Hook, Miss Mary Agnes McKenzie and the driver were discharged from the hospital after being treated in the dispensary.

Mary Potter and Miss Weld were taken to the hospital by the Johnson Ambulance Service, Berlin. Their physician described them as "doing all right" last night.

The car was described as beyond repair.

Mary Potter's parents are vacationing in Bristol, Tenn., and were notified of the accident by telegram.

Miss Hook, a student at Waynesburg College, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Hook; Miss Weld, a student at State Teachers College, Towson, Md., is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Weld, and Miss McKenzie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McKenzie.

The driver of the car was graduated from Meyersdale High School in June of this year.

Knipe's Snipe Wins Deep Creek Regatta

Robert Knipe, Pittsburgh, ably demonstrated his skill at the tiller by winning Sunday's race at the Deep Creek Yacht Club.

Knipe, who has been a consistent winner at the helm of other boats in the fleet, was skippering his own boat, a reclaimed hull which has been out of competition since before the war, for the first time.

The race was sailed in a whistling wind and the nine boats had much trouble staying upright in the heavy going. Knipe and his crew, Mrs. Donald B. Grove, Cumberland, won the race in the last hundred yards, beating out Commodore Richard Holben, Frostburg, in his Snipe and Felix Winslow, Washington, who was sailing his Comet which was the scratch boat.

The only mishap was near the end of the race when Dr. Mahan, Morgantown, and Dr. Donald B Grove, Cumberland, who were sailing Dr. Mahan's Snipe, capsized and lost a sail, causing them to withdraw.

The racing committee for the event was Harold H. Muma chairman, assisted by Mrs. Paul Hutson, Jr., and Mrs. John F. Schaidt.

Students Register In Swimming School

Sixth grade students at Pennsylvania Avenue and East Side schools were registered yesterday morning in the Red Cross-sponsored swimming school being held each weekday morning at Constitution Park Pool.

The classes are under the direction of Miss Ann Nagel, Red Cross swimming instructor, assisted by Miss Kay Harter and James Hines.

Frostburg City Employes To Get $10 Wage Boost

FROSTBURG — The Mayor and City Council of Frostburg last night voted to increase the salaries of all monthly employes here by $10 a month.

The increase, to become effective as of August 1, will boost the salary of City Clerk Alex G. Close from $215 to $225 a month; Police Chief Benjamin Thomas, $185 to $195; Night Police Chief Ronald Kreider, $183 to $193 monthly.

Street Supervisor George Krapf, $175 to $185; Water Superintendent James Kenny, Jr., $185-$195; Filtration Plant Manager Melvin Lemmert, $175 to $185; Piney Run Dam Pumpman Emmit McAteer, $135 to $145.

Laborers, who now receive 80 cents an hour, will receive 88 cents under the new scale, an eight cent an hour boost.

Police Officers Lloyd Truly, Donald Griffith, George Tipping, Walter Eichhorn and John E. Kerr who now receive $175 a month, will be paid $185 a month.

The city granted a similar $10 a month increase last fall.

The City Council also paid off the $55,000 water improvement bond issue of 1923 last night.

This issue was voted during the administration of Mayor Olen R. Rice.

The judges included Frank McNally, Brooklyn, N. Y.; G. Bland Hoke, Bedford, Pa.; Dean K. S. McKee, Keyser, W. Va.; Mrs. Judith Forbush, Detroit, Mich.; Miss Joan Estap, "Miss West Virginia 1947"; Max Esper, Washington, D. C., and Bradford Fraport, Atlantic City, N. J.

Miss Lookabaugh was "thrilled and excited," she said last night after the coronation. She also showed some excitement, and as she walked down the run-way, her knees almost buckled and she paused to regain her composure. Then she smiled bravely, but as she returned to the stage, Moore loaned her his handkerchief to wipe tears from her eyes so she could pose for the score or more cameramen and news photographers who covered the show.

People in the audience from all communities who had entries said the show was excellent, and the entire audience which filled the auditorium and balcony remained through the three-hour performance without an intermission. It was one of the best exhibits of its kind ever seen staged or attempted here, and scores of persons were heard to voice their approval.

Six area men enlisted in the last week, he added. They are Glenn W. Davis, Vocke Drive; Charles E. DeWitt, Terra Alta, W. Va.; Venecy Silvester, Corinth, W. Va.; William Morgan, Corinth; Richard M. Smith, Romney, W. Va., and Melvin Smith, Berkeley Springs, W. Va.

Hamill Says

State Senator Lawrence Fraley, Oakland, last night termed the whole affair "clearly a misunderstanding."

Men in the Oakland unit, he explained, were perfectly sincere in believing they did not have to go to camp when attendance would work a hardship.

Gen. Purnell, assistant commander of the 29th Division at Camp Ritchie, he said, went off "half-cocked" in the matter which the senator asserted could have been settled satisfactorily had Oakland authorities been contacted.

The state senator said the "high handed" action during church time created quite a stir in Oakland. The citizens of Oakland, he added, did not like the way the whole matter was handled.

Expressing regret at the incident, Senator Fraley said the whole matter could have been straightened out by one man if the National Guard had sent an officer to check on the preparations the recently organized unit was making.

He added he did not think the misunderstanding about camp duty would jeopardize the future of the Oakland unit which has had an attendance average of 80 per cent or better. The unit has had a good record from the start, he emphasized.

It was purely a misunderstanding on the part of our boys, he said, adding that he believed with a newly organized unit such as the Oakland Company, National Guard officers should have checked to see that camp attendance would be satisfactory.

Racing Officials Cleared Of Blame In Jockey's Death Here

State Commission Says Alpine Boy Too Blind To Race In Maryland

Veterinarians Admit They Approved Horse

Dr. Gross, Tammaro Testify At Hearing

BALTIMORE, Aug. 2—(AP)—The State Racing Commission found today that 12-year-old Alpine Boy is too blind to race in Maryland but assessed no blame for an accident in which he killed a jockey.

The three man commission said there is "a reasonable difference of opinion" on whether the gelding was too blind to run in the fourth race at Fairgo racetrack near Cumberland, Md., July 24.

Alpine Boy bolted through the fence about 40 yards out of the gate and pitched Jockey Benny Leggett over his head.

The 22-year-old rider from Gaithersburg, Md., was on his feet in half an hour but collapsed again and died in a Cumberland hospital the next day.

The commission held a hearing today to determine if any of the officials were negligent in letting the horse go to the post.

Agree Horse Fit To Run

Much of the testimony was given by veterinarians. They agreed that Alpine Boy was fit to run.

They acknowledged he is totally blind in the right eye and has a small cataract and "periodic opthmalia" in the left.

Dr. Mason Weadon, Washington veterinarian who has specialized on eye troubles for at least ten years, said Alpine Boy has only 10 to 20 per cent vision in the left eye.

"By this scientific data," he said, "it is amazing that Alpine Boy gets around. But he does. Practical tests show he has considerable vision in that eye, particularly on a bright, sunny day.

"He has none of the symptoms, none of the actions of a blind horse. You know how a blind horse keeps his head stuck out, kind of sniffing his way along? Alpine Boy doesn't do that.

"He walked between two chairs without any trouble. He walked over uneven ground all right. There wasn't anything about him to indicate he doesn't have normal vision.

"The state veterinarians could have been severely criticized for barring him, particularly in view of his 1947 record."

Won After Being Barred

After he was barred by the veterinarian at Charles Town, W. Va., in 1947, Alpine Boy ran in 11 races at Laurel, Timonium, Bel Air, Delaware Park and Atlantic City. He won three times, was second five times, and third once—out of the money only twice.

Jockey John Tammaro rode him in several of those races and was called to the stand.

"He is a rough horse," the jockey said.

"He stumbled into the rail with me at Bel Air last year. If the rail there had been like the one at Cumberland, the same thing might have happened to me.

"I told the trainer after that never to put me on that horse anymore."

Tammaro Testifies

Tammaro was riding at Cumberland a week ago Saturday and said he remarked to some other jockeys when he saw Alpine Boy entered that he "wouldn't ride that horse—he's got bad eyes."

The boy said, however, that there was nothing about the horse to indicate he is totally blind.

"He lugs to the left, but he can be taken out. He acts like he wants to be guided. I always gathered him right in at the start. If you didn't his head would go right down."

The jockey's 21-year-old widow recounted the events from the time she went to the infield just before the race. A few moments later her husband had been thrown just 20 feet in front of her.

She said he was given only a cursory examination at the track first aid room and when he went into convulsions at the hospital early next morning she had trouble finding a doctor. She said Clifton W. White, general manager at Fairgo, indicated he couldn't be bothered.

Dr. James A. Gross of Jarrettsville, himself a veterinarian, raised the 12-year-old gelding from a colt and said his right eye started going bad in the summer of 1946.

"We don't know too much about periodic opthmalia," he said, "except we know it is a terrible disease and finally causes blindness.

"The best treatment we know is riboflavin and he was getting it. I saw him six weeks earlier. There was nothing wrong with the left eye then."

Vets Knew Horse Was Blind

Dr. F. M. Keller, chief of the commission veterinarians, and his two assistants, Dr. Hulbert Young and Dr. James Stewart, testified they examined Alpine Boy before the race. They knew he was blind in the right eye but saw nothing wrong with the left and noticed nothing about his actions that would keep him from racing.

Members of the commission interviewed most of the witnesses in private before the start of the hearing.

Racing Officials Cleared Of Blame In Jockey's Death Here

State Commission Says Alpine Boy Too Blind To Race In Maryland

Veterinarians Admit They Approved Horse

Dr. Gross, Tammaro Testify At Hearing

BALTIMORE, Aug. 2—(AP)—The State Racing Commission found today that 12-year-old Alpine Boy is too blind to race in Maryland but assessed no blame for an accident in which he killed a jockey.

The three man commission said there is "a reasonable difference of opinion" on whether the gelding was too blind to run in the fourth race at Fairgo racetrack near Cumberland, Md., July 24.

Alpine Boy bolted through the fence about 40 yards out of the gate and pitched Jockey Benny Leggett over his head.

The 22-year-old rider from Gaithersburg, Md., was on his feet in half an hour but collapsed again and died in a Cumberland hospital the next day.

The commission held a hearing today to determine if any of the officials were negligent in letting the horse go to the post.

Agree Horse Fit To Run

Much of the testimony was given by veterinarians. They agreed that Alpine Boy was fit to run.

They acknowledged he is totally blind in the right eye and has a small cataract and "periodic opthmalia" in the left.

Dr. Mason Weadon, Washington veterinarian who has specialized on eye troubles for at least ten years, said Alpine Boy has only 10 to 20 per cent vision in the left eye.

"By this scientific data," he said, "it is amazing that Alpine Boy gets around. But he does. Practical tests show he has considerable vision in that eye, particularly on a bright, sunny day.

"He has none of the symptoms, none of the actions of a blind horse. You know how a blind horse keeps his head stuck out, kind of sniffing his way along? Alpine Boy doesn't do that.

"He walked between two chairs without any trouble. He walked over uneven ground all right. There wasn't anything about him to indicate he doesn't have normal vision.

"The state veterinarians could have been severely criticized for barring him, particularly in view of his 1947 record."

Won After Being Barred

After he was barred by the veterinarian at Charles Town, W. Va., in 1947, Alpine Boy ran in 11 races at Laurel, Timonium, Bel Air, Delaware Park and Atlantic City. He won three times, was second five times, and third once—out of the money only twice.

Jockey John Tammaro rode him in several of those races and was called to the stand.

"He is a rough horse," the jockey said.

"He stumbled into the rail with me at Bel Air last year. If the rail there had been like the one at Cumberland, the same thing might have happened to me.

"I told the trainer after that never to put me on that horse anymore."

Tammaro Testifies

Tammaro was riding at Cumberland a week ago Saturday and said he remarked to some other jockeys when he saw Alpine Boy entered that he "wouldn't ride that horse—he's got bad eyes."

The boy said, however, that there was nothing about the horse to indicate he is totally blind.

"He lugs to the left, but he can be taken out. He acts like he wants to be guided. I always gathered him right in at the start. If you didn't his head would go right down."

The jockey's 21-year-old widow recounted the events from the time she went to the infield just before the race. A few moments later her husband had been thrown just 20 feet in front of her.

She said he was given only a cursory examination at the track first aid room and when he went into convulsions at the hospital early next morning she had trouble finding a doctor. She said Clifton W. White, general manager at Fairgo, indicated he couldn't be bothered.

Dr. James A. Gross of Jarrettsville, himself a veterinarian, raised the 12-year-old gelding from a colt and said his right eye started going bad in the summer of 1946.

"We don't know too much about periodic opthmalia," he said, "except we know it is a terrible disease and finally causes blindness.

"The best treatment we know is riboflavin and he was getting it. I saw him six weeks earlier. There was nothing wrong with the left eye then."

Vets Knew Horse Was Blind

Dr. F. M. Keller, chief of the commission veterinarians, and his two assistants, Dr. Hulbert Young and Dr. James Stewart, testified they examined Alpine Boy before the race. They knew he was blind in the right eye but saw nothing wrong with the left and noticed nothing about his actions that would keep him from racing.

Members of the commission interviewed most of the witnesses in private before the start of the hearing.

Americans Win 800 Meters And Pole Vault In Olympics

LOSER CONGRATULATES BEN—Ed (Porky) Oliver of Seattle, left, congratulates Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., after the latter handed him a nine-stroke beating yesterday at Buffalo, N. Y., in the 18-hole playoff for the Western Open Golf Championship. Bantam Ben posted a record-shattering 64 and Oliver a 73. Both golfers had 72-hole scores of 281 at the end of the regular tourney on Sunday.

Ben Hogan Wins Over Ed Oliver, In Western Open

Cops Playoff By Nine Strokes, Earns $2,500

By FRITZ HOWELL

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP) — Bantam Ben Hogan today added the Western Open Golf Championship to his National Open and PGA crowns—the first man ever to hold the three titles the same season.

And he did it, in an 18-hole playoff with Seattle's Ed (Porky) Oliver, in such impressive style that he had his pudgy opponent rooting for him at the finish.

The stone-faced, 137-pounder from Hershey, Pa., who hits like a heavyweight and putts like a billiard shark, turned the sunfilled finale into a rout as he smothered the westerner under a nine-stroke avalanche—64 to Oliver's 73—the most one-sided playoff since Bob Jones whipped Al Espinosa by 23 shots in the 36-hole playoff for the 1929 National Open laurels.

Hogan, a perfect golfing machine except on the third hole where he hit one chip shot a bit too hard, carded a 33-31—64, eight under par. That clipped two strokes off Brookfield Country Club's record, and left Oliver so far behind that it was practically no contest. Oliver scored 37-36—73.

The two tied over the regulation 72-hole route at 281 strokes, seven under par, but Hogan skidded to 74 yesterday—one of his poorest rounds of the year—to let Oliver get into the deadlock with a closing 71.

Hogan had nothing but fours and threes on his playoff card as he registered seven birdies and an eagle and missed par only once. Oliver missed par three times and had two birdies, his iron shots to the greens proving his big trouble as he scrambled in vain to stay even with his fast-flying foe.

By winning $2,500 first money, Hogan boosted his year's tournament earning to $25,297.50—which tops the list. Oliver took the $1,800 second place check, which was more than he had earned in seven previous contests.

The cards for the two finalists follow:

Par out	443	534	454—36
Hogan out	444	433	434—33
Oliver out	443	534	554—37

U. S. ACE IS ON TOP—Mal Whitfield (136) of Ohio State University takes the lead in the 800-meter race which he won yesterday in record-breaking time of 1:49.2 at the Olympic Games in Wembley, England. Following Whitfield is Arthur Wint (122) of Jamaica, B.W.I., who took second followed by Marcel Hansenne (151), France, who came in third. At right is Ingvar Bengtsson (164) of Sweden who finished fifth. Third from left (partly hidden between Whitfield and Hansenne) is R.C.H. Chef D'Hotel (152) who finished far out of the running. Whitfield Sets Record In 800 Before 84,000

Smith Tops Vaulters, Italy Takes Discus

Ann Curtis Defeated, U. S. Diver Injured

By GAYLE TALBOT

OLYMPIC STADIUM, Wembley, England, Aug. 2 (AP) — A record breaking victory by Mal Whitfield in the 800 meter run and a magnificent flight by Guinn Smith in the pole vault gave America's track and field stars two more Olympic titles before another capacity crowd of 84,000 today.

Whitfield, an army air force sergeant stationed at Lockbourne Field, Columbus, O., established a new Olympic mark of 1:49.2 for two laps of the wet, heavy track in beating the greatest field ever to run in the event in the games.

Two of the human deer he defeated either beat or equalled the former Olympic record of 1:49.8 set by Britain's Tom Hampson in 1939 and all six finalists ran the 800 faster than Johnny Woodruff's winning time of 1:52.9 in the 1936 games at Berlin.

Arthur Wint, a tall Jamaican, finished second about three yards back after putting on a thrilling sprint in the stretch.

Smith Cops Pole Vault

Smith, forced to make his approach along a soggy, slippery runway, soared to 14 feet, 1¼ inches to win the pole vault. He fell short of Earl Meadows' Olympic Mark of 14 feet, 3½ inches, but it was a great effort under the conditions. A light but steady rain fell through the last hours of the competition.

Erkki Kataja of Finland was second at 13 feet, 9 inches, and Bob Richards of the United States took third at the same height. He had more misses than the Finn. Erling Kaas of Norway placed fourth, Ragner Lundberg of Sweden fifth and Richard (Boo) Morcom of the United States sixth. All cleared 13 feet, 5 inches.

The day's most spectacular and pulse-stirring event saw Gaston Reiff, a balding little fellow from Belgium, just last to snatch victory in the 5,000 meter run from Emil Zatopek, the Czech star who had won the 10,000 and was trying to complete a classic double.

With only 200 meters to go, Reiff was in front by close to 40 meters, and appeared headed for an easy victory. But Zatopek took after him and failed by only two yards to nip him at the wire as the crowd went wild with excitement.

Reiff's time of 14 minutes, 17.6 seconds, as well as Zatopek's 14:17.8, were under the former Olympic record of 14:22.2 set by Gunnar Hockert of Finland at Berlin in 1936.

Curtis Stone of State College, Pa., the only American who qualified for the event, had nothing to be ashamed of in finishing sixth against 11 of Europe's Distance stars.

Italian Wins Discus

With two husky Italians taking turns throwing the discus out of sight, Uncle Sam could manage no better than a third in that event. Adolfo Consolini, the winner, shattered the Olympic record with a toss of 173 feet, 2 inches, and so did his teammate, Giuseppe Tosi, with 169 feet, 10½ inches.

Fortune Gordien of the University of Minnesota grabbed third place at 166 feet, 7 inches, which also bettered the Olympic mark of 165 feet, 7½ inches set by Ken Carpenter of the United States at Berlin. The two other American entries, Victory Frank and Bill Burton, fell far short of their best and failed even to qualify for the final throw-off.

Uncle Sam's aquatic forces also suffered a couple of setbacks, one of them as the result of an accident.

Miller Anderson of Ohio State was injured in an exhibition dive, dimming American chances for a sweep in the men's diving championships.

Anderson finished second to Bruce Harlan as the United States took the top three places in the springboard diving Saturday, but no such sweep will be possible in the tower diving starting Wednesday unless he recovers by that time.

Ann Curtis of San Francisco could place no better than second in the women's 100 meter freestyle swimming final, won by Greta Anderson of Denmark in 1:06.3.

America's trio of women divers were leading the parade at the halfway mark in the springboard competition.

U. S. Swimming Coach Bob Kiphuth pulled a sleeper by using his second-stringers to qualify for the finals of the men's 800-meter relay tomorrow night, while the top quartet rested.

Three American sprinters, Mel Patton, Barney Ewell and Cliff Bourland, packed themselves into the field of 12 qualifiers for the semi-final of the 200 meters. One of them should win tomorrow's final, though Herb McKenley, the noted collegian running for Jamaica, will be a threat.

Schmitz Bags 5th Win Over Dodgers

Cubs Beat Brooklyn In 11th Inning, 4-2

BROOKLYN, Aug. 2—(AP)—Chicago's Johnny Schmitz maintained his jinx over Brooklyn today as he whipped the Dodgers for the fifth time this year, 4-2, in eleven innings.

Usually all the Windy City flinger has to do is throw in his glove and the Brooks played dead. Today they made him work but Eddie Waitkus took care of things in the 11th with a double that drove in Schmitz himself with what proved to be the winning run. Andy Pafko drove in the insurance run with a fly out.

Waitkus and Pafko drove in the other two Cub runs in the first inning, each belting a homer. The Brooks sent the game into overtime with single tallies in the fourth and eighth frames.

Schmitz gave up nine hits. The Cubs got as much off four Dodger hurlers. Box:

TIGERS GIVE RECORD BONUS TO CATCHER

DETROIT, Aug. 2—(INS)—The Detroit Tigers today announced the signing of Henry Frank House, Jr., a sensational 18-year-old catcher, at a bonus reputedly approaching a history-making $80,000.

Tigers General Manager Billy Evans refused to disclose the bonus price, but it apparently was large enough to draw the youngster's interest from "eight or nine" other offers.

The 184-pound youth, standing six feet-two inches, has worked out with the Birmingham Club of the Southern Association for the past two seasons. His home is in Bessemer, Ala.

He joins the Flint Arrows, the Tigers' farm club in the Class A Central League, and will be called up in one year.

St. Louis Cardinals Shatter Giants' Winning Streak, 21-5

Winners Get 20 Hits, 20,446 See Massacre

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—Staging the largest scoring spree in the majors this season, the St. Louis Cardinals today shattered the seven-game winning streak of the New York Giants by pounding five assorted flingers for 20 hits and a humiliating 21-5 victory.

A crowd of 20,446 sat in on the massacre. It watched the high flying Redbirds score in every inning but the seventh and ninth. They routed starter and loser Ray Poat with a four-run first inning after two were out and continued their assault on Clint Hartung, Ken Trinkle, Monte Kennedy and Clem Derisewerd. Their big inning was the fifth when they counted eight times.

The Cards collected 12 extra base wallops, only one away from their own league record of 13. They smashed four home runs and eight doubles. Stan Musial cracked his 25th four-bagger. Marty Marion his fourth, Erv Dusak his third and Whitey Kurwoski his second.

Catcher Del Wilber, who finished off Poat with a two-run single in the opener, collected three hits and drove in five runs. Kurowski batted in four. Enos Slaughter, who reached base the first five times he went to bat, scored four times and drove in three.

Little Murry Dickson, encouraged by this great batting support, went the route for the first time since June 26, to register his eighth win. He has lost 11.

Dickson was socked for 11 hits, three of them home runs to increase the total homer output against him this season to 28, only three away from the league record of 31. Billy Rigney, Whitey Lockman and Bob Thomson got the Giants homers. It was Lockman's fourth round tripper in his last four games, his season's total is fifteen.

The victory moved the Cardinals up into a virtual third place tie with the Brooklyn Dodgers who bowed to the Chicago Cubs. Both clubs are one game behind the second place Giants. Box:

America's Cage Wizards Easily Beat Czech Five

Score 2nd Victory In Olympics, 53-28

LONDON, Aug. 2 (AP)—America's wizards of the court punctured any doubts of their Olympic basketball invincibility today by scoring a leisurely 53 to 28 triumph over Czechslovakia, the best team in all Europe.

The Americans' mastery was so complete that the Phillips Oilers' seven-foot Bob Kurland, who can dunk the ball in the basket with the mildest sort of a leap, never once indulged in this advantage.

He only took aim when a sporting distance out on the floor and he cashed in a couple of these which, with two free throws, gave him six points for the day.

U. S. Coach Omar (Bud) Browning mixed up his players. Never once did he send in a full five man squad of Phillips Oilers, the great National Champion A.A.U. team from Bartlesville, Okla., or of University of Kentucky Wildcats, who dominated U. S. college ranks last season.

A segment of the crowd of 1,250 hooted and laughed as Kurland and his towering teammates toyed with their adversaries.

The Americans led 23-12 at halftime. The Czechs used a tight defense and their alert ball-handling made a good show of it.

This was the second victory for the Americans in group C—one of the four divisions of round robin eliminations.

The two top teams of each division qualify for places in the eight-team tournament proper.

Argentina, another member of the C group, won its second straight also, downing Switzerland, 49-23. Others in the group are Egypt and Peru. Peru defeated Egypt, 52-27.

Brazil won its third in a row in the A-group, trouncing Britain, 76-11.

France came from behind to defeat Cuba, 37-31. Mexico continued to look like the class of the D-division by slaughtering Eire, 71-9.

Americans Win 800 Meters And Pole Vault In Olympics

LOSEK CONGRATULATES BEN—Ed (Porky) Oliver of Seattle, left, congratulates Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., after the latter handed him a nine-stroke beating yesterday at Buffalo, N. Y., in the 18-hole playoff for the Western Open Golf Championship. Bantam Ben posted a record-shattering 64 and Oliver a 73. Both golfers had 72-hole scores of 281 at the end of the regular tourney on Sunday.

Ben Hogan Wins Over Ed Oliver, In Western Open

Cops Playoff By Nine Strokes, Earns $2,500

By FRITZ HOWELL

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP) — Bantam Ben Hogan today added the Western Open Golf Championship to his National Open and PGA crowns—the first man ever to hold the three titles the same season.

And he did it, in an 18-hole playoff with Seattle's Ed (Porky) Oliver, in such impressive style that he had his pudgy opponent rooting for him at the finish.

The stone-faced, 137-pounder from Hershey, Pa., who hits like a heavyweight and putts like a billiard shark, turned the sunfilled finale into a rout as he smothered the westerner under a nine-stroke avalanche—64 to Oliver's 73—the most one-sided playoff since Bob Jones whipped Al Espinosa by 23 shots in the 36-hole playoff for the 1929 National Open laurels.

Hogan, a perfect golfing machine except on the third hole where he hit one chip shot a bit too hard, carded a 33-31—64, eight under par. That clipped two strokes off Brookfield Country Club's record, and left Oliver so far behind that it was practically no contest. Oliver scored 37-36—73.

The two tied over the regulation 72-hole route at 281 strokes, seven under par, but Hogan skidded to 74 yesterday—one of his poorest rounds of the year—to let Oliver get into the deadlock with a closing 71.

Hogan had nothing but fours and threes on his playoff card as he registered seven birdies and an eagle and missed par only once. Oliver missed par three times and had two birdies, his iron shots to the greens proving his big trouble as he scrambled in vain to stay even with his fast-flying foe.

By winning $2,500 first money, Hogan boosted his year's tournament earning to $25,297.50—which tops the list. Oliver took the $1,800 second place check, which was more than he had earned in seven previous contests.

The cards for the two finalists follow:

Par out	443	534	454—36
Hogan out	444	433	434—33
Oliver out	443	534	554—37

U. S. ACE IS ON TOP—Mal Whitfield (136) of Ohio State University takes the lead in the 800-meter race which he won yesterday in record-breaking time of 1:49.2 at the Olympic Games in Wembley, England. Following Whitfield is Arthur Wint (122) of Jamaica, B.W.I., who took second followed by Marcel Hansenne (151), France, who came in third. At right is Ingvar Bengtsson (164) of Sweden who finished fifth. Third from left (partly hidden between Whitfield and Hansenne) is R.C.H. Chef D'Hotel (152) who finished far out of the running. Whitfield Sets Record In 800 Before 84,000

Smith Tops Vaulters, Italy Takes Discus

Ann Curtis Defeated, U. S. Diver Injured

By GAYLE TALBOT

OLYMPIC STADIUM, Wembley, England, Aug. 2 (AP) — A record breaking victory by Mal Whitfield in the 800 meter run and a magnificent flight by Guinn Smith in the pole vault gave America's track and field stars two more Olympic titles before another capacity crowd of 84,000 today.

Whitfield, an army air force sergeant stationed at Lockbourne Field, Columbus, O., established a new Olympic mark of 1:49.2 for two laps of the wet, heavy track in beating the greatest field ever to run in the event in the games.

Two of the human deer he defeated either beat or equalled the former Olympic record of 1:49.8 set by Britain's Tom Hampson in 1939 and all six finalists ran the 800 faster than Johnny Woodruff's winning time of 1:52.9 in the 1936 games at Berlin.

Arthur Wint, a tall Jamaican, finished second about three yards back after putting on a thrilling sprint in the stretch.

Smith Cops Pole Vault

Smith, forced to make his approach along a soggy, slippery runway, soared to 14 feet, 1¼ inches to win the pole vault. He fell short of Earl Meadows' Olympic Mark of 14 feet, 3½ inches, but it was a great effort under the conditions. A light but steady rain fell through the last hours of the competition.

Erkki Kataja of Finland was second at 13 feet, 9 inches, and Bob Richards of the United States took third at the same height. He had more misses than the Finn. Erling Kaas of Norway placed fourth, Ragner Lundberg of Sweden fifth and Richard (Boo) Morcom of the United States sixth. All cleared 13 feet, 5 inches.

The day's most spectacular and pulse-stirring event saw Gaston Reiff, a balding little fellow from Belgium, just last to snatch victory in the 5,000 meter run from Emil Zatopek, the Czech star who had won the 10,000 and was trying to complete a classic double.

With only 200 meters to go, Reiff was in front by close to 40 meters, and appeared headed for an easy victory. But Zatopek took after him and failed by only two yards to nip him at the wire as the crowd went wild with excitement.

Reiff's time of 14 minutes, 17.6 seconds, as well as Zatopek's 14:17.8, were under the former Olympic record of 14:22.2 set by Gunnar Hockert of Finland at Berlin in 1936.

Curtis Stone of State College, Pa., the only American who qualified for the event, had nothing to be ashamed of in finishing sixth against 11 of Europe's Distance stars.

Italian Wins Discus

With two husky Italians taking turns throwing the discus out of sight, Uncle Sam could manage no better than a third in that event. Adolfo Consolini, the winner, shattered the Olympic record with a toss of 173 feet, 2 inches, and so did his teammate, Giuseppe Tosi, with 169 feet, 10½ inches.

Fortune Gordien of the University of Minnesota grabbed third place at 166 feet, 7 inches, which also bettered the Olympic mark of 165 feet, 7½ inches set by Ken Carpenter of the United States at Berlin. The two other American entries, Victory Frank and Bill Burton, fell far short of their best and failed even to qualify for the final throw-off.

Uncle Sam's aquatic forces also suffered a couple of setbacks, one of them as the result of an accident.

Miller Anderson of Ohio State was injured in an exhibition dive, dimming American chances for a sweep in the men's diving championships.

Anderson finished second to Bruce Harlan as the United States took the top three places in the springboard diving Saturday, but no such sweep will be possible in the tower diving starting Wednesday unless he recovers by that time.

Ann Curtis of San Francisco could place no better than second in the women's 100 meter freestyle swimming final, won by Greta Anderson of Denmark in 1:06.3.

America's trio of women divers were leading the parade at the halfway mark in the springboard competition.

U. S. Swimming Coach Bob Kiphuth pulled a sleeper by using his second-stringers to qualify for the finals of the men's 800-meter relay tomorrow night, while the top quartet rested.

Three American sprinters, Mel Patton, Barney Ewell and Cliff Bourland, packed themselves into the field of 12 qualifiers for the semi-final of the 200 meters. One of them should win tomorrow's final, though Herb McKenley, the noted collegian running for Jamaica, will be a threat.

Schmitz Bags 5th Win Over Dodgers

Cubs Beat Brooklyn In 11th Inning, 4-2

BROOKLYN, Aug. 2—(AP)—Chicago's Johnny Schmitz maintained his jinx over Brooklyn today as he whipped the Dodgers for the fifth time this year, 4-2, in eleven innings.

Usually all the Windy City flinger has to do is throw in his glove and the Brooks played dead. Today they made him work but Eddie Waitkus took care of things in the 11th with a double that drove in Schmitz himself with what proved to be the winning run. Andy Pafko drove in the insurance run with a fly out.

Waitkus and Pafko drove in the other two Cub runs in the first inning, each belting a homer. The Brooks sent the game into overtime with single tallies in the fourth and eighth frames.

Schmitz gave up nine hits. The Cubs got as much off four Dodger hurlers. Box:

TIGERS GIVE RECORD BONUS TO CATCHER

DETROIT, Aug. 2—(INS)—The Detroit Tigers today announced the signing of Henry Frank House, Jr., a sensational 18-year-old catcher, at a bonus reputedly approaching a history-making $80,000.

Tigers General Manager Billy Evans refused to disclose the bonus price, but it apparently was large enough to draw the youngster's interest from "eight or nine" other offers.

The 184-pound youth, standing six feet-two inches, has worked out with the Birmingham Club of the Southern Association for the past two seasons. His home is in Bessemer, Ala.

He joins the Flint Arrows, the Tigers' farm club in the Class A Central League, and will be called up in one year.

St. Louis Cardinals Shatter Giants' Winning Streak, 21-5

Winners Get 20 Hits, 20,446 See Massacre

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—Staging the largest scoring spree in the majors this season, the St. Louis Cardinals today shattered the seven-game winning streak of the New York Giants by pounding five assorted flingers for 20 hits and a humiliating 21-5 victory.

A crowd of 20,446 sat in on the massacre. It watched the high flying Redbirds score in every inning but the seventh and ninth. They routed starter and loser Ray Poat with a four-run first inning after two were out and continued their assault on Clint Hartung, Ken Trinkle, Monte Kennedy and Clem Derisewerd. Their big inning was the fifth when they counted eight times.

The Cards collected 12 extra base wallops, only one away from their own league record of 13. They smashed four home runs and eight doubles. Stan Musial cracked his 25th four-bagger. Marty Marion his fourth, Erv Dusak his third and Whitey Kurwoski his second.

Catcher Del Wilber, who finished off Poat with a two-run single in the opener, collected three hits and drove in five runs. Kurowski batted in four. Enos Slaughter, who reached base the first five times he went to bat, scored four times and drove in three.

Little Murry Dickson, encouraged by this great batting support, went the route for the first time since June 26, to register his eighth win. He has lost 11.

Dickson was socked for 11 hits, three of them home runs to increase the total homer output against him this season to 28, only three away from the league record of 31. Billy Rigney, Whitey Lockman and Bob Thomson got the Giants homers. It was Lockman's fourth round tripper in his last four games, his season's total is fifteen.

The victory moved the Cardinals up into a virtual third place tie with the Brooklyn Dodgers who bowed to the Chicago Cubs. Both clubs are one game behind the second place Giants. Box:

America's Cage Wizards Easily Beat Czech Five

Score 2nd Victory In Olympics, 53-28

LONDON, Aug. 2 (AP)—America's wizards of the court punctured any doubts of their Olympic basketball invincibility today by scoring a leisurely 53 to 28 triumph over Czechoslovakia, the best team in all Europe.

The Americans' mastery was so complete that the Phillips Oilers' seven-foot Bob Kurland, who can dunk the ball in the basket with the mildest sort of a leap, never once indulged in this advantage.

He only took aim when a sporting distance out on the floor and he cashed in a couple of these which, with two free throws, gave him six points for the day.

U. S. Coach Omar (Bud) Browning mixed up his players. Never once did he send in a full five man squad of Phillips Oilers, the great National Champion A.A.U. team from Bartlesville, Okla., or of University of Kentucky Wildcats, who dominated U. S. college ranks last sesaon.

A segment of the crowd of 1,250 hooted and laughed as Kurland and his towering teammates toyed with their adversaries.

The Americans led 23-12 at halftime. The Czechs used a tight defense and their alert ball-handling made a good show of it.

This was the second victory for the Americans in group C—one of the four divisions of round robin eliminations.

The two top teams of each division qualify for places in the eight-team tournament proper.

Argentina, another member of the C group, won its second straight also, downing Switzerland, 49-23. Others in the group are Egypt and Peru. Peru defeated Egypt, 52-27.

Brazil won its third in a row in the A-group, trouncing Britain, 76-11.

France came from behind to defeat Cuba, 37-31. Mexico continued to look like the class of the D-division by slaughtering Eire, 71-9.

Paye, Gardner Get Municipal Posts

The Mayor and City Council yesterday appointed Albert S. Paye as manager and liaison agent of the flood control project and James C. Gardner, 505 Magruder Street, a member of the Board of Zoning Appeals.

Paye, a local engineer, will receive a monthly salary of $500 plus traveling expenses, according to the contract, which passed on a four to one vote, with Commissioner of Streets Edgar Reynolds dissenting.

Gardner, a local truck salesman, succeeds Joseph R. Mantheiy, who resigned because of the "press of personal business." The appointment is effective August 1.

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan and City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer were authorized to appoint a committee of local plumbers to consider the proposed ordinance which would create a Board of Plumbing and a plumbing inspector.

A Cumberland Contracting Company bid to resurface Virginia Avenue from the intersection with Oldtown Road to Laing Avenue was referred to Commissioner of Streets Reynolds and the city engineer.

The company bid on approximately 860 tons of hot mix paving material at $9.66 a ton and approximately 750 gallons of tack coat at 26 cents a gallon.

Slot Machine Trial Postponed

A hearing on a slot machine charge against James Durkin, 27 Williams Street, has been postponed until August 6.

Four machines were seized by police in a raid on Ruth's Tavern, 25 Williams Street, which Durkin operates, on Saturday. Durkin posted $200 bond.

A hearing in one of two slot machine charges involving the Moose Home in Keyser, W. Va., is scheduled to be held there today. Edward Burns, lodge steward, posted $200 bond after six machines were confiscated last Wednesday.

Four more machines were seized last Saturday but no charges have been placed as some members of the lodge have stated, they knew nothing about the machines being kept in the club rooms.

Hatfield, or Bishop's Hatfield, Hertfordshire, England, is noted for Hatfield House, seat of the Marquis of Salisbury, which is built on the site and containing the remains, of the famous palace of the bishops of Ely erected in the 12th century. Henry VIII acquired it. Queen Elizabeth was called to the throne while a resident of the palace; James I also resided there, and it was one of the prisons of Charles I.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By DOROTHY MANNERS

(Louella Parsons on vacation)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 2—(INS)—Walter Wanger, a pretty smart gent where box office values are concerned, may be willing to trust the girl's role in "Reign Of Terror" to newcomer Arline Dahl.

Jack Paar

But he has got himself a top boy for the hero. Robert Cummings has signed for the starring part in this spectacle of the French revolution. It is his first costume role in years and years.

The cast of "Somewhere In the City" sounds like the complete starring roster at Warners. Viveca Lindfors, the Scandinavian siren, is teamed with Edmund O'Brien. The second romantic theme goes to Virginia Mayo and Gordon MacRae with Dane Clark added for good measure.

"Somewhere In the City" is termed a suspenseful melodrama. Anthony Veiller will produce with Vincent Sherman directing.

Dick Haymes is in New York and pretty homesick for Hollywood. But he's been startling the natives with talk about the difference between eastern and western theater audiences.

After two weeks in a Chicago theater, Dick says eastern audiences are marvelous and so enthusiastic. Dick says he thinks the apathy comes from west coasters practically being neighbors with celebrated people. In the east, stars are new, different and exciting.

David Selznick has been listening to the work of conductors and composers all over the country hunting for the right maestro to score "Portrait Of Jennie."

But when it got around to signing a contract, the job went to Dmitri Tiomkin right here in Hollywood. The most recent score of his I have heard was for "Twisted Road," the former "Your Red Wagon"—and but thrilling. Tiomkin also scored "Duel In the Sun" for Selznick in which there was nothing wrong with the music, you may remember.

The campaign Louella Parsons has been putting on for representative artists — not entirely actors — to tour the country, meet the people and do a good ambassador job for Hollywood, is bearing fruit.

Designer Rene Hubert is being sent by 20th Century-Fox on a cross-country speaking tour in connection with Betty Grable's "Lady In Ermine."

Naturally, his chief topic will be about clothes. But it seems to me that this opens up a new approach to "personal appearances." Why not some of our best directors, set designers, cameramen and writers on similar missions meeting the paying customers face to face?

Hollywood in shorts: Peggy Cummin's beau around New York is Huntington Hartford III, the Pasadena millionaire.

Returning from London on the same boat with Louella Parsons and Dr. Harry Martin were the William Goetzes and Fredie Brisson, Roz Russell's husband. The Martins are due in Hollywood Thursday.

Mickey Rooney's former girl friend, M'liss McClure, is testing for the Cathy O'Donnell role in "Roseanna McCoy." Part calls for a girl with perfect feet—M'liss has a size three foot with perfect toes.

Madame Ouspenskaya celebrated her birthday at the Kings and said she would tell everything but her age.

Good looking Phil Reed with Lynn Merrick (the ex-Mrs. Conrad Nagel) at the Biltmore Bowl.

The Jack Paars expect their first child around New Year's eve time. He is the radio and screen comic under contract to RKO.

Bob Hope should never take a vacation. When he came back from South America last year he was stricken with sunburn poisoning and fever. Now he is up at Del Monte with Dolores and the children—and what does he get but poison oak?

Betty Kroeger goes to Salzburg to play the lead in the revival of "Everyman" which will be staged by Helena Thimig, widow of Max Reinhardt. Kroeger, who is doing all right in his movie career, too, was a one-time announcer with our girl friend, Lop.

Brian Donlevy has been working on the "Lucky Stiff" set with a cold, fever and stiff neck for the past few days—which ain't so lucky.

That's all today.

Complaint In Deed Dispute Dismissed

In an opinion handed down by Chief Judge William A. Huster in Circuit Court, a bill of complaint by James J. Emerick, of Midland, against Mary B. Stevens, et al, asking that a deed transferring a piece of property to her be declared null and void, was dismissed.

The testimony in the case showed that the property in question was held under a deed listing Emerick, Mary B. Stevens, Cora Nolan, Daniel Nolan, James S. Wagus and Cora Wagus as owners.

Emerick charged that on May 27, 1947 the deed was conveyed to John M. Robb, Cumberland attorney, and then reconveyed to Mary B. Stevens and the others. The court commented that "although Emerick was an aged man he is able to carry on his business at a gas station and was able to transact business deals."

Judge Huster also stated that there was no evidence of fraud or coercion in the property transfer and that Emerick had arranged for the transaction to be handled by the attorney and understood the matter.

Deed Recorded

A deed transferring the ownership of a feed store on Decatur Street from Clarence D. and Ida E. Valentine to the Bedford Milling Company, a Pennsylvania corporation, was recorded yesterday at the Court House. Tax stamps affixed to the deed indicated the sale price was $10,000.

Paye, Gardner Get Municipal Posts

The Mayor and City Council yesterday appointed Albert S. Paye as manager and liaison agent of the flood control project and James C. Gardner, 505 Magruder Street, a member of the Board of Zoning Appeals.

Paye, a local engineer, will receive a monthly salary of $500 plus traveling expenses, according to the contract, which passed on a four to one vote, with Commissioner of Streets Edgar Reynolds dissenting.

Gardner, a local truck salesman, succeeds Joseph R. Manthely, who resigned because of the "press of personal business." The appointment is effective August 1.

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan and City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer were authorized to appoint a committee of local plumbers to consider the proposed ordinance which would create a Board of Plumbing and a plumbing inspector.

A Cumberland Contracting Company bid to resurface Virginia Avenue from the intersection with Oldtown Road to Laing Avenue was referred to Commissioner of Streets Reynolds and the city engineer.

The company bid on approximately 860 tons of hot mix paving material at $9.66 a ton and approximately 750 gallons of tack coat at 26 cents a gallon.

Slot Machine Trial Postponed

A hearing on a slot machine charge against James Durkin, 27 Williams Street, has been postponed until August 6.

Four machines were seized by police in a raid on Ruth's Tavern, 23 Williams Street, which Durkin operates, on Saturday. Durkin posted $200 bond.

A hearing in one of two slot machine charges involving the Moose Home in Keyser, W. Va., is scheduled to be held there today. Edward Burns, lodge steward, posted $200 bond after six machines were confiscated last Wednesday.

Four more machines were seized last Saturday but no charges have been placed as some members of the lodge have stated, they knew nothing about the machines being kept in the club rooms.

Hatfield, or Bishop's Hatfield, Hertfordshire, England, is noted for Hatfield House, seat of the Marquis of Salisbury, which is built on the site and containing the remains, of the famous palace of the bishops of Ely erected in the 12th century. Henry VIII acquired it. Queen Elizabeth was called to the throne while a resident of the palace; James I also resided there, and it was one of the prisons of Charles I.

HOLLYWOOD

By DOROTHY MANNERS
(Louella Parsons on vacation)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 2—(INS)—Walter Wanger, a pretty smart gent where box office values are concerned, may be willing to trust the girl's role in "Reign Of Terror" to newcomer Arline Dahl.

Jack Paar

But he has got himself a top boy for the hero. Robert Cummings has signed for the starring part in this spectacle of the French revolution. It is his first costume role in years and years.

The cast of "Somewhere In the City" sounds like the complete starring roster at Warners. Viveca Lindfors, the Scandinavian siren, is teamed with Edmund O'Brien. The second romantic theme goes to Virginia Mayo and Gordon MacRae with Dane Clark added for good measure.

"Somewhere In the City" is termed a suspenseful melodrama. Anthony Veiller will produce with Vincent Sherman directing.

Dick Haymes is in New York and pretty homesick for Hollywood. But he's been startling the natives with talk about the difference between eastern and western theater audiences.

After two weeks in a Chicago theater, Dick says eastern audiences are marvelous and so enthusiastic. Dick says he thinks the apathy comes from west coasters practically being neighbors with celebrated people. In the east, stars are new, different and exciting.

David Selznick has been listening to the work of conductors and composers all over the country hunting for the right maestro to score "Portrait Of Jennie."

But when it got around to signing a contract, the job went to Dmitri Tiomkin right here in Hollywood. The most recent score of his I have heard was for "Twisted Road," the former "Your Red Wagon"—and but thrilling. Tiomkin also scored "Duel In the Sun" for Selznick in which there was nothing wrong with the music, you may remember.

The campaign Louella Parsons has been putting on for representative artists — not entirely actors — to tour the country, meet the people and do a good ambassador job for Hollywood, is bearing fruit.

Designer Rene Hubert is being sent by 20th Century-Fox on a cross-country speaking tour in connection with Betty Grable's "Lady In Ermine."

Naturally, his chief topic will be about clothes. But it seems to me that this opens up a new approach to "personal appearances." Why not some of our best directors, set designers, cameramen and writers on similar missions meeting the paying customers face to face?

Hollywood in shorts: Peggy Cummin's beau around New York is Huntington Hartford III, the Pasadena millionaire.

Returning from London on the same boat with Louella Parsons and Dr. Harry Martin were the William Goetzes and Fredie Brisson, Roz Russell's husband. The Martins are due in Hollywood Thursday.

Mickey Rooney's former girl friend, M'liss McClure, is testing for the Cathy O'Donnell role in "Roseanna McCoy." Part calls for a girl with perfect feet—M'liss has a size three foot with perfect toes.

Madame Ouspenskaya celebrated her birthday at the Kings and said she would tell everything but her age.

Good looking Phil Reed with Lynn Merrick (the ex-Mrs. Conrad Nagel) at the Biltmore Bowl.

The Jack Paars expect their first child around New Year's eve time. He is the radio and screen comic under contract to RKO.

Bob Hope should never take a vacation. When he came back from South America last year he was stricken with sunburn poisoning and fever. Now he is up at Del Monte with Dolores and the children—and what does he get but poison oak?

Betty Kroeger goes to Salzburg to play the lead in the revival of "Everyman" which will be staged by Helena Thimig, widow of Max Reinhardt. Kroeger, who is doing all right in his movie career, too, was a one-time announcer with our girl friend, Lop.

Brian Donlevy has been working on the "Lucky Stiff" set with a cold, fever and stiff neck for the past few days—which ain't so lucky.

That's all today.

Complaint In Deed Dispute Dismissed

In an opinion handed down by Chief Judge William A. Huster in Circuit Court, a bill of complaint by James J. Emerick, of Midland, against Mary B. Stevens, et al, asking that a deed transferring a piece of property to her be declared null and void, was dismissed.

The testimony in the case showed that the property in question was held under a deed listing Emerick, Mary B. Stevens, Cora Nolan, Daniel Nolan, James S. Wagus and Cora Wagus as owners.

Emerick charged that on May 27, 1947 the deed was conveyed to John M. Robb, Cumberland attorney, and then reconveyed to Mary B. Stevens and the others. The court commented that "although Emerick was an aged man he is able to carry on his business at a gas station and was able to transact business deals."

Judge Huster also stated that there was no evidence of fraud or coercion in the property transfer and that Emerick had arranged for the transaction to be handled by the attorney and understood the matter.

Deed Recorded

A deed transferring the ownership of a feed store on Decatur Street from Clarence D. and Ida E. Valentine to the Bedford Milling Company, a Pennsylvania corporation, was recorded yesterday at the Court House. Tax stamps affixed to the deed indicated the sale price was $10,000.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Leave My Mould Alone

The other day, impelled by a sense of duty that strikes me occasionally, I met Corliss Archer, a teen-age girl anybody can meet if he's not careful with his radio dial around 10 p. m. Tuesdays (N. B. C.). I haven't seen Corliss for some time, years in fact, and it was vaguely disquieting to find she hasn't changed a bit.

John Crosby

Corliss was sulking because her boy friend Dexter said she would never grow up. In her imitable voice—every teen-age girl in radio seems to talk the same way—she was squealing: "He said some girls never grow up. Can you imagine any one saying that about me? A girl like me?"

Well, yes I can, Corliss. It seems to me Dexter has waited long enough. Miss Archer, it ought to be explained, first saw the whites of an audience's eyes in 1943 in the play "Kiss and Tell," and she was then about fifteen. How many teen-age years are there? There used to be only seven (thirteen through nineteen, the way my mathematician figures it) but in radio these girls get becalmed at the age of fifteen and live in a perpetual Sargasso Sea of adolescence. (I'll shoot the first man that touches that metaphor.)

I'm especially disturbed about the effects of these teen age babes on all the other teen-age babes and I'll tell you why. Just after Miss Archer had vented her displeasure at Dexter, she announced her determination to make him over into something more presentable than the drip he is. The word drip is Miss Archer's, not mine. She was, in short, going to mould him. I don't know whether she succeeded in moulding him; I suspect she did, Dexter being one of the most plastic representatives of his plastic age group. Anyhow, I didn't wait around for this sordid spectacle. I turned the radio off and fell to brooding about the consequences of this loose talk on the female young of the nation. The idea that all men require moulding and that only a woman is capable of it has already become too deeply rooted in our popular literature and I think it's high time somebody started digging away at it.

Years ago, I recall with distinct pleasure, in the play "Cynara," somebody or other remarked—and I'm quoting loosely from memory—"When two people get married, the husband hopes his wife won't change and the wife hopes she can change her husband. Both are disappointed."

It's a fairly accurate though sweeping statement. Despite years of failure, the girls—stirred by this incessant propaganda on the radio and in a lot of popular magazines—keep trying to mould us and I'm depressed to find this idea seeping down into teen-age ranks. A fellow ought to be able to get through boyhood without a lot of girls moulding him all over the place. Seems to me that one of the most persistant and non-shatterable myths of American life is this idea that behind every American man is an American girl, leading him by the nose from the rear, if that seems possible. The myth is endlessly repeated with slight variations in story and song and radio comedy.

Every two years or so, an English author with a fixed smile and a trunkful of misconceptions comes to this country and hears the songs and reads the stories and listens to the radio. Then he goes home and writes a book explaining that Amerdica is a hag-ridden society entirely under the domination of women. From this premise, which I find wholly questionable, he draws some of the confoundedest conclusions I ever read, sets up an imaginary society of Amazons and manages to fit our whole social structure into it.

All this is quite a distance from "Meet Corless Archer," which is a pleasant enough teen-age comedy if that's one of your enthusiasms. Miss Archer, I ought to add, has a patient, resigned mother and a father who lives in a state of perpetual exasperation. Dexter is a libel on all teen-age boys. As for Corliss, I think she should be burned as a witch. Any one who can stay fifteen that long is obviously in league with the devil.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Leave My Mould Alone

The other day, impelled by a sense of duty that strikes me occasionally, I met Corliss Archer, a teen-age girl anybody can meet if he's not careful with his radio dial around 10 p. m. Tuesdays (N. B. C.). I haven't seen Corliss for some time, years in fact, and it was vaguely disquieting to find she hasn't changed a bit.

John Crosby

Corliss was sulking because her boy friend Dexter said she would never grow up. In her imitable voice—every teen-age girl in radio seems to talk the same way—she was squealing: "He said some girls never grow up. Can you imagine any one saying that about me? A girl like me?"

Well, yes I can, Corliss. It seems to me Dexter has waited long enough. Miss Archer, it ought to be explained, first saw the whites of an audience's eyes in 1943 in the play "Kiss and Tell," and she was then about fifteen. How many teen-age years are there? There used to be only seven (thirteen through nineteen, the way my mathematician figures it) but in radio these girls get becalmed at the age of fifteen and live in a perpetual Sargasso Sea of adolescence. (I'll shoot the first man that touches that metaphor.)

I'm especially disturbed about the effects of these teen age babes on all the other teen-age babes and I'll tell you why. Just after Miss Archer had vented her displeasure at Dexter, she announced her determination to make him over into something more presentable than the drip he is. The word drip is Miss Archer's, not mine. She was, in short, going to mould him. I don't know whether she succeeded in moulding him; I suspect she did, Dexter being one of the most plastic representatives of his plastic age group. Anyhow, I didn't wait around for this sordid spectacle. I turned the radio off and fell to brooding about the consequences of this loose talk on the female young of the nation. The idea that all men require moulding and that only a woman is capable of it has already become too deeply rooted in our popular literature and I think it's high time somebody started digging away at it.

Years ago, I recall with distinct pleasure, in the play "Cynara," somebody or other remarked—and I'm quoting loosely from memory—"When two people get married, the husband hopes his wife won't change and the wife hopes she can change her husband. Both are disappointed."

It's a fairly accurate though sweeping statement. Despite years of failure, the girls—stirred by this incessant propaganda on the radio and in a lot of popular magazines—keep trying to mould us and I'm depressed to find this idea seeping down into teen-age ranks. A fellow ought to be able to get through boyhood without a lot of girls moulding him all over the place. Seems to me that one of the most persistant and non-shatterable myths of American life is this idea that behind every American man is an American girl, leading him by the nose from the rear, if that seems possible. The myth is endlessly repeated with slight variations in story and song and radio comedy.

Every two years or so, an English author with a fixed smile and a trunkful of misconceptions comes to this country and hears the songs and reads the stories and listens to the radio. Then he goes home and writes a book explaining that Amerdica is a hag-ridden society entirely under the domination of women. From this premise, which I find wholly questionable, he draws some of the confoundedest conclusions I ever read, sets up an imaginary society of Amazons and manages to fit our whole social structure into it.

All this is quite a distance from "Meet Corless Archer," which is a pleasant enough teen-age comedy if that's one of your enthusiasms. Miss Archer, I ought to add, has a patient, resigned mother and a father who lives in a state of perpetual exasperation. Dexter is a libel on all teen-age boys. As for Corliss, I think she should be burned as a witch. Any one who can stay fifteen that long is obviously in league with the devil.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Stock Market Tries To Get On Base But Pops Out; Few Issues Traded

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP) — The stock market tried to get on base today but popped out with a weak fly.

Only 710,000 shares of stock changed hands, a bottom since the total dropped below 700,000 on March 15. The number of issues traded was also a low since March.

Plymouth Oil showed one of the widest price swings. The stock advanced about four points at one time but fell back and closed 2½ ahead at 48½. Plymouth was one of the issues marked down during some recent selling spells.

Stock Market Tries To Get On Base But Pops Out; Few Issues Traded

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP) — The stock market tried to get on base today but popped out with a weak fly.

Only 710,000 shares of stock changed hands, a bottom since the total dropped below 700,000 on March 15. The number of issues traded was also a low since March.

Plymouth Oil showed one of the widest price swings. The stock advanced about four points at one time but fell back and closed 2½ ahead at 48½. Plymouth was one of the issues marked down during some recent selling spells.

Others lower included Mission Corporation at 56½, Youngstown Sheet 79⅝, Chrysler 59⅞, Goodrich Tire 55, Curtiss-Wright 10⅛, Western Union 21, American Smelting 59, Santa Fe 112⅛, Great Northern preferred 42¼, Northern Pacific 22½, Standard Oil (NJ) 78⅝, and Paramount Pictures 21½.

United States Steel at 78¾, Bethlehem Steel at 35¼, and American Telephone at 153⅝, were up fractionally.

In quiet trading, the New York Bond Market drifted lower, with two issues breaking out with wide downward swings.

United States government bonds were unchanged to fractionally lower. Foreign issues ran against the tide with a slight advance on average.

The volume for the day was $2,450,000, considerably under the Friday total of $3,390,000 and slightly under a week ago when the trading amounted to $2,516,000.

Cumberland Girl Is Crowned "Miss Maryland"

Miss Lookabaugh Wins Title By Three Points

Frostburg Girl Is Runner-Up

Miss Juanita Lookabaugh, 18-year-old Narrows Park brunette, took top honors in the Miss Maryland finals for the Miss America Pageant, and was crowned "Miss Maryland of 1948" by "Miss America of 1947" at Fort Hill High School auditorium here last night. She entered the contest as "Miss Cumberland."

Finishing second and trailing by only three points was Miss Erma Jean Chambers, "Miss Frostburg." In third place was "Miss Baltimore," Miss Dottie McClure.

Scored 99 Of 140

When the final tabulation was completed the tally sheet showed Miss Lookabaugh had totaled 99 points of a possible 140 to win. Miss Chambers totaled 96 to put her in second place and Miss McClure was third with 76 points.

Under the Atlantic City pageant rules which were followed here, the seven judges mark ballots after the contestants appear in evening gowns and these seven ballots are then totaled. Three top winners are announced. However, there was a tie and four girls, Miss Baltimore, Miss Cumberland, Miss Frostburg, and Miss Charles County, Miss Louise Boone, of Waldorf, were the four finalists in evening gowns.

In the talent review, the same procedure was followed and Miss Cumberland, Miss Hagerstown, who is Miss Mary Flick, and Miss Lonaconing were announced as the winners.

In the bathing suit competition, Miss Cumberland was again a finalist as were Miss Hagerstown and Miss Frostburg.

By finishing in the top three brackets in all three competitions, Miss Cumberland totaled enough points to put her ahead. Miss Baltimore polled most of her points in the evening gown competition, and Miss Frostburg placed in bathing suits and evening gowns.

Models Three Costumes

Miss Lookabaugh, who modeled a four-piece suit she designed and made to win the Cumberland preliminary contest, literally stole the show last night by modeling three separate costumes and explaining how she designed and made each of them. First she showed a black dinner gown. She removed this, displaying a skirt and blouse. To this she added a jacket and modeled the resulting suit.

Removing the jacket and skirt, she appeared in a sarong-type bathing suit, and then modeled it as she thought an "island girl" would model it. She did an interpretation of an island dance, that brought cheers from the audience.

Miss Frostburg gave an interpretation of a "rhumba" in a costume she designed, created and made herself in her talent portrayal. It was an outstanding exhibition of natural talent as well as giving evidence of training and ability.

Miss Baltimore gave an exhibition of twirling, using two batons. She was attired in a gay and colorful costume. It was one of the best majorette exhibitions seen here.

Miss Charles County gave a dramatic reading. Miss Hagerstown sang, "I Can't Give You Anything But Love."

Miss Lonaconing offered a humorous reading. Miss Oakland, Miss Molly Smart, gave a short talk and recited a humorous poem. Miss Potomac, Miss Ruth Hott, modeled and sketched a combination evening gown and dinner-dance dress.

The show was interspersed with a bevy of talent and entertainment. Miss Barbara Jo Walker. "Miss America of 1947," now the wife of Dr. Richard Hummell, sang two delightful numbers.

Miss Jean Dixon, "Miss Maryland of 1947," also sang two numbers. The Elks Quartet appeared in several vocal selections and then supported Mrs. Winnie Moore in a novelty number.

Jay and Charmaine Johnson, a dance team, interpreted a waltz number and "Miss Washington D. C. of 1943," Mrs. Dixie Rafter Ballard, sang two numbers.

Termed Best Show

Miss Lenora Slaughter, national director of the Miss America Pageant, who came to Cumberland to witness the state finals, told the audience, "For the past two years, I have traveled to all parts of the country and have seen many stage shows. This one tonight is by far the best show I have seen."

She complimented the local Jaycees and the citizens for sponsoring and supporting the project and declared, "85 per cent of our local shows are now Jaycee-sponsored."

Music for the show was furnished by Jay Van's Orchestra. J.

Hitchcock Says Third Of PE Fly Ash Eliminated

Cites Irreducible Dust And Dirt In Air

Thirty-three per cent of the fly ash sprayed over the city by the Potomac Edison Company River Plant has been eliminated, George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, said yesterday as he outlined the things he "has done" in the past three months.

There is an irreducible amount of dust and dirt in the city "and we can only hope to reduce air pollution that is in excess of this irreducible minimum, Hitchcock explained in answer to complaints filed by James Alfred Avirett, local attorney.

"Avirett will never have the relief from smoke and dirt that he expects as long as he resides in the locality of the PE River plant," Hitchcock declared.

In a letter read at the municipal meeting yesterday answering Avirett, Hitchcock stated, "I wish to report that I have made a careful investigation of conditions that caused this complaint.

Normal Operation

"The River Plant, at this specified time was under normal operation. The noon-day hour is when the electric load at the plant is at its minimum, it reduces the load from normal XXX this period is the time when the 'Cottrell Units' are wrapped and release for a short period the fly-ash.

"During this interval when the boilers are under low-pressure the tendency for the released fly-ash to settle near the plant area is at its best."

The smoke engineer said as yet he has no method to measure smoke and dirt emitted by trains and industry, but explained, "I have completed tentative locations for the city's Air Pollution Stations. It will take six months before a standard can be set and a quantitative analysis for measure maintained as a basis to establish a violation."

It is a matter of record that 33 per cent of the fly ash emitted by the PE plant three months ago has been eliminated, Hitchcock said, adding that electric precipitators have already been installed on two of the six stacks at the River Plant.

Equipment is available for the remaining four stacks, Hitchcock said, and would have been in operation by now, but the local plant was called upon for maximum production when the Williamsburg, Pa., plant developed boiler trouble. Work will be completed in about two weeks, he added.

Due To Human Element

Locomotives operating in this vicinity on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad are also about 80 per cent equipped with over fire jet installation, the smoke engineer declared, but explained the condition now is a result of the human element which operates the trains.

Such a condition cannot be corrected until the men can be educated through hearings, and possibly penalties, which will be conducted shortly under the City ordinance, he declared.

"I am against heavy fines but prefer the longer—but sure—method

Keyser Restaurant Owner Drowns In Six-Inch Pool

Missing From Home For Three Days

A 28-year-old Keyser, W. Va., restaurant owner was found drowned in a six inch pool of water between a concrete wall foundation and a dirt bank of the Plymouth building on South Davis Street yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Keyser authorities reported.

William Paul Dawson, 297 West Piedmont Street, the victim, was pronounced dead from drowning by Dr. Harry Coffman, Mineral County, W. Va., health officer, who set the time of death at 2 o'clock Sunday morning.

Claude Martin, Keyser chief of police, said Dawson's body was found wedged between the wall and bank by Harry Ellifritz and Robert Kane, construction workers who are erecting the Plymouth building.

Dawson, who was last seen when he left the home of his brother, Howard J. Dawson, 399 Wade Avenue, Saturday at midnight, was found face down in the pool of water that collected between the foundation wall and the excavation that was not yet filled in.

Chief Martin said it appeared Dawson started to his home after

Balloting Is Heavy At Celanese Plant

Officials of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, reported last night that yesterday's voting in the union security election came "up to expectations."

The heaviest voting came at 3 p. m. as the shift change whistle gave the signal for a 50-yard dash to the polls. The union said workers were lined up from the main gate to the union booth after that race. Some buses were held up 15 minutes to allow workers to vote.

June Employment Here Up 9,141 Over Last Year

Payrolls Double Over Strike Month

Almost 10,000 more workers were employed in the Cumberland area in June than in June, 1947, when the huge Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of American was closed by a strike, the July report of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce indicates.

This June, the 17 industries here reported that 17,771 persons were employed, as contrasted to the 8,630 total of June, 1947, for an increase of 9,141 workers.

The employment in June was, however, more than 1,000 less than in May, 1947, when 18,996 persons were employed by the same industries. That drop, officials explained, is due to resumption of peacetime production schedules and technological changes.

Payrolls Increase

Payrolls in June totaled $4,090,941.68, an increase of $2,005,392.74 over the $2,085,548.94 payrolls here during the month's strike.

Postal receipts in June were $27,017.28, an increase of $3,756.61 over May's receipts of $23,260.67.

Postal saving bonds also increased, showing a boost of $1,387.50 over the May, 1948, postal savings bond sales. Postal savings deposits, however, were $15,899 in June, a decrease of $1,422 over this May Defense stamp sales also dropped $285 in June over the previous month.

A decrease of $4,181 from May was noted in Building Permits which totaled $67,635 in July.

The employment picture was rather gloomy, with the Maryland Employment Service reporting 2,389 unemployed persons registered July 15, an increase of 156 over the June 15 registration figures.

Job Placements Drop

Placements by July 15 were listed at 243, a decrease of 43 over the 30-day period ending June 15.

Man Injured As Cooker Explodes

George G. Swan, Jr., 26, 467 Baltimore Avenue, was treated at Allegany Hospital yesterday after a pressure cooker exploded at his home, injuring him and his wife. He sustained burns of the arms, face and chest.

Attia Marker, 87, Fort Ashby, W. Va., was treated at the same hospital at noon for injuries to her right shoulder and hip sustained when she fell. Two sutures were required to close a laceration over her right eye. She received antitetanus serum and was discharged.

Dennis Burns, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Burns, Route 3, Bedford Road, received treatment for injuries to his right forearm sustained when he was bitten by a dog.

Dorothy Twigg, 9, Valley Road, was admitted for surgery after she cut her right eye on a piece of glass.

Harry Blair, Midland, was treated at Memorial Hospital at 5:45 p. m. for lacerations of the index finger of his right hand sustained when he attempted to remove the top from a bottle at the Celanese plant while he was at work there. The bottle broke, cutting his hand. Sutures were used to close the wound and he was discharged.

Robert Miller, 22, Corriganville, fell from a ladder while at work at the Potomac Edison Company river Plant yesterday and was been admitted to Memorial Hospital. Miller's lacerated forehead was sutured and x-rays were taken of his skull and nose.

Also treated at Memorial Hospital yesterday was Ray Everly, 20, of 940 Glenwood Street, a worker of the Cumberland Undergarment Company. Everly was released after his left index finger, which he had lacerated on a cutting machine, received treatment.

Hamill Says His Duties Important As Polo Game

Charges Battalion Commander Is Away

Lt. Stuart F. Hamill, the commanding officer of the Oakland National Guard Company, who resigned rather than report for summer encampment Sunday, said last night the battalion colonel is also absent from the 15-day training period at Camp Ritchie.

"Col. Hewitt is in England playing polo with an Olympic team, I understand," Hamill said, adding, "That may be important to him but our homes and businesses are important to us."

"We knew after the last drill session in Oakland that the majority of the company would not be able to attend camp," Hamill said last night, "and if they (superior officers at camp) had asked the advance party that arrived there Wednesday they would have been so informed," he added.

Advised of Inattendance

When Col. Hewitt visited Oakland several months ago on his first and only inspection, Hamill said, he advised the officer then that he doubted if he could attend camp and also advised him that it was highly probable that many of the men would find it impossible to attend.

"Col. Hewitt told me then," Hamill declared, "If you have sufficient reason you don't have to attend. It's not compulsory."

Hamill said he did understand that if 60 per cent of the company did not attend camp the men would not receive pay. "But I have been under the impression all along that it was not compulsory," he declared.

Hamill said he was told officers at the camp are threatening the company personnel by telling them they'll never get an armory in Oakland now, unless they toe the mark 100 per cent.

Hamill said that if General William Purnell "carries this too far, as he is on the border line of doing, I am going to see what can be done about it."

However, Hamill said he had no intention of making any issue of the matter in an effort to reclaim his commission. Earlier in the day he told reporters, "Well I didn't want to go back into the Army and I'm sure out now."

Hamill, and Oakland attorney, said he had a case that had to be filed in court this morning and also that he has a good deal of business to look after for his father who is ill. The elder Hamill is also an attorney.

Guard Permits 6 Oakland Men To Leave Camp

Hamill Likens MP's To Storm Troopers

CAMP RITCHIE, Md., Aug. 2 (AP)—A National Guard board of inquiry today permitted six Oakland, Md., guardsmen to return to their homes but 21 other members of the Oakland unit rounded up by Military Police were ordered to remain here for the two-week summer training session.

The 27 guardsmen, representing about half of the Oakland company, were picked up yesterday in Garrett County and brought here to answer to charges of being absent without leave from the encampment.

Brig. Gen. William C. Purnell said the board released the six and permitted them to return home because it was determined that camp service would work a "personal or business hardship" on them.

He said none of the 27 will be punished for failing to report to duty when the 29th division went into camp here Saturday.

Resigns Commission

However, the Oakland commander of the company, First Lt. Stuart F. Hamill, Jr., an attorney, resigned his commission because of a "misunderstanding" with General Purnell, commander of the Maryland units in the division.

Hamill said the M.P.s came into Oakland "like storm troopers" and "hauled the boys right out of their homes and their work, loaded them on trucks and took them off to camp."

Wilbur Close, editor of the Oakland Democrat said "We thought it was pretty high handed. We think it was uncalled for. We have no complaint against the Military Police or their captain," he said. "They were all very courteous."

Hamill said that "we understood from the beginning that a man didn't have to go to camp if he had a good legal excuse."

"Yesterday," he said, "they told me 60 per cent of the men had to be in camp if the company was to be paid.

"If they'd gone into that with me when the company was organized I could have told them that we wouldn't have 60 per cent in camp," Hamill said.

Didn't Want Job

Hamill said he hadn't wanted to take the job of commanding the company which, is part of the 121st Engineer Battalion.

"I'm a lawyer," he said. "I told them I didn't know anything about egnineering. They said take it on a temporary basis. Well, I didn't want to go back into the Army and I'm sure out now."

General Purnell said he received Hamill's resignation today and had forwarded it to General Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of the guard.

General Reckord issued a statement that "I am very definitely surprised at the failure of Lieutenant Hamill and approximately 50 per cent of the members of his x x x company to realize their responsibility as members of the National Guard."

He added that "I believe this entire incident can be charged to the inexperience of Lieutenant Hamill and his failure to realize the full responsibility of his obligation.

Bonds Forfeited On Disorderly Charges

Two local men forfeited bonds yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court when they failed to appear for hearing on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct.

Joseph W. Shaffer Locust Grove, forfeited $12. He was apprehended by State Trooper G. M. Rotruck Saturday night and was charged with being drunk and disorderly on a public highway near Narrows Park.

E. E. Miller, Bowman's Addition, forfeited $8 on a charge preferred by State Trooper Glenn D. Folk following an alleged disturbance in Bowman's Addition Saturday.

A charge of drunk and disorderly conduct against Paul Bucklew, 18 Putman Street, was dismissed in Police Court yesterday when his wife, who was listed as a witness, failed to appear. He was arrested by Officer J. W. Snyder at 12:40 a. m. Sunday.

A hearing for Virgil Glass, 26 Orchard Street, on a charge of disorderly conduct was postponed pending appearance of his opponent in an alleged altercation Sunday morning. He was arrested at 12:08 a. m. Sunday by Officers J. W. Snyder and W. E. Valentine.

Busy Little Bee Blamed For Crash

The busy bee was blamed for an automobile collision on Route 50 near Keyser at 3:45 p. m. yesterday, that resulted in two persons suffering minor injuries, West Virginia State Police said.

The injured, Mrs. David Watkins, 106 Clark Street, Cumberland, and Mrs. Minnie DePolo, Long Island, N. Y., were admitted to hospitals for treatment of injuries that police said were painful but apparently not serious.

Marko Pica, Morristown, N. J., told police he lost control of his car when a bee flew in the window. He was fined $15 for failing to keep to the right of the road.

447 Licenses Issued

A total of 447 marriage licenses was issued at the office of the Clerk of Court of Allegany County during the month of July.

Meeting Postponed

A meeting of the Sales Promotion and Advertising committees of the Mercantile Bureau planned last night has been postponed until Wednesday at 7:30 p. m., James R. Kendall, assistant manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said.

The Weather

Local residents finally received a respite yesterday from the torrid weather conditions that prevailed for the last two weeks, with the slightly lower temperature and cool breezes all day. The maximum recorded in the 24-hour period was 87 degrees, and the temperature at 11 p. m. yesterday was 68. The weatherman predicted little change in temperature for today, but said the skies would be "partly cloudy."

SMOKE CONTROL MAP-- With tentative stations indicated by the black dots on the map, George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, said yesterday he plans shortly to put the Air-Pollution Stations in operation and thus determine the extent of smoke and dirt emitted by the various plants in the city. The plan is based on the prevailing wind in the city with stations located on radii which are placed 1,000 yards apart, plus the lateral locations which are based on 120 degree angles east and west of the prevailing wind conditions.

The State's Attorney's office reported yesterday that county authorities are still investigating the accident which resulted in the death of a Wheeling, W. Va., woman Sunday.

Miss Genevieve M. Clark, 43, Wheeling, was instantly killed early Sunday night when the car in which she was riding crashed on McCoole Road, near Westernport, and Miss Honora McGuigan, also of Wheeling, who State Police First Sgt. W. E. O'Hara said was the driver of the car, was admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, for treatment of injuries suffered in the crash.

Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, said Miss McGuigan had not improved sufficiently yesterday to be questioned about the accident.

Paper Drive Nets 4 Tons

Four tons of paper was collected yesterday in outlying sections of the city in the first day of this month's paper drive.

Collections will be made in all West Side sections today. Newspapers, magazines, corrugated boxes, brown paper bags, and bagged or packaged wastepaper will be picked up from curbs in front of homes.

Board Of Education Approves Location Of Teachers College

BALTIMORE, Aug. 2 (AP)—The State Board of Education today adopted a resolution approving an extensive program of improvement at Maryland's four teacher training institutions and advocated keeping the Frostburg State Teachers College at its present site.

The action was in conflict with a recommendation of the Marbury Commission, which suggested "prompt abandonment" of the Frostburg facility.

The board voted "an expression of confidence in the permanency" of Frostburg "and in the necessity for its location on the present site."

Board Member Wendell D. Allen said he did not believe there was a "Chinaman's chance" that the Marbury Commission recommendation would go through.

The capital improvement program, based on present and prospective needs, proposes erection of a number of new buildings at Frostburg, Towson, Salisbury and Bowie, in addition with land purchased at all except the latter.

No specific priorities were assigned to the projects by the investigators and no cost estimates were included.

The board agreed that priorities should be worked out in co-operation with the State Planning Commission and the State's chief engineer, with the assistance of a full time co-ordinator to be employed for the purpose.

Cumberland Girl Is Crowned "Miss Maryland"

Miss Lookabaugh Wins Title By Three Points

Frostburg Girl Is Runner-Up

Miss Juanita Lookabaugh, 18-year-old Narrows Park brunette, took top honors in the Miss Maryland finals for the Miss America Pageant, and was crowned "Miss Maryland of 1948" by "Miss America of 1947" at Fort Hill High School auditorium here last night. She entered the contest as "Miss Cumberland."

Finishing second and trailing by only three points was Miss Erma Jean Chambers, "Miss Frostburg." In third place was "Miss Baltimore," Miss Dottie McClure.

In a Junior Association of Commerce-sponsored presentation staged and directed by Jack F. Moore, 1,800 persons saw eight lovely Maryland girls compete in evening gown, talent, bathing suit and personality, while seven out-of-state judges marked secret ballots in each category.

Scored 99 Of 140

When the final tabulation was completed the tally sheet showed Miss Lookabaugh had totaled 99 points of a possible 140 to win. Miss Chambers totaled 96 to put her in second place and Miss McClure was third with 76 points.

Under the Atlantic City pageant rules which were followed here, the seven judges mark ballots after the contestants appear in evening gowns and these seven ballots are then totaled. Three top winners are announced. However, there was a tie and four girls, Miss Baltimore, Miss Cumberland, Miss Frostburg, and Miss Charles County, Miss Louise Boone, of Waldorf, were the four finalists in evening gowns.

In the talent review, the same procedure was followed and Miss Cumberland, Miss Hagerstown, who is Miss Mary Flick, and Miss Lonaconing were announced as the winners.

In the bathing suit competition, Miss Cumberland was again a finalist as were Miss Hagerstown and Miss Frostburg.

By finishing in the top three brackets in all three competitions, Miss Cumberland totaled enough points to put her ahead. Miss Baltimore polled most of her points in the evening gown competition, and Miss Frostburg placed in bathing suits and evening gowns.

Models Three Costumes

Miss Lookabaugh, who modeled a four-piece suit she designed and made to win the Cumberland preliminary contest, literally stole the show last night by modeling three separate costumes and explaining how she designed and made each of them. First she showed a black dinner gown. She removed this, displaying a skirt and blouse. To this she added a jacket and modeled the resulting suit.

Removing the jacket and skirt, she appeared in a sarong-type bathing suit, and then modeled it as she thought an "island girl" would model it. She did an interpretation of an island dance, that brought cheers from the audience.

Miss Frostburg gave an interpretation of a "rhumba" in a costume she designed, created and made herself in her talent portrayal. It was an outstanding exhibition of natural talent as well as giving evidence of training and ability.

Miss Baltimore gave an exhibition of twirling, using two batons. She was attired in a gay and colorful costume. It was one of the best majorette exhibitions seen here.

Miss Charles County gave a dramatic reading. Miss Hagerstown sang, "I Can't Give You Anything But Love."

Miss Lonaconing offered a humorous reading. Miss Oakland, Miss Molly Smart, gave a short talk and recited a humorous poem. Miss Potomac, Miss Ruth Hott, modeled and sketched a combination evening gown and dinner-dance dress.

The show was interspersed with a bevy of talent and entertainment. Miss Barbara Jo Walker, "Miss America of 1947," now the wife of Dr. Richard Hummell, sang two delightful numbers.

Miss Jean Dixon, "Miss Maryland of 1947," also sang two numbers. The Elks Quartet appeared in several vocal selections and then supported Mrs. Winnie Moore in a novelty number.

Jay and Charmaine Johnson, a dance team, interpreted a waltz number and "Miss Washington D. C. of 1943," Mrs. Dixie Rafter Ballard, sang two numbers.

Termed Best Show

Miss Lenora Slaughter, national director of the Miss America Pageant, who came to Cumberland to witness the state finals, told the audience, "For the past two years, I have traveled to all parts of the country and have seen many stage shows. This one tonight is by far the best show I have seen."

She complimented the local Jaycees and the citizens for sponsoring and supporting the project and declared, "85 per cent of our local shows are now Jaycee-sponsored."

Music for the show was furnished by Jay Van's Orchestra. J.

Hitchcock Says Third Of PE Fly Ash Eliminated

Cites Irreducible Dust And Dirt In Air

Thirty-three per cent of the fly ash sprayed over the city by the Potomac Edison Company River Plant has been eliminated, George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, said yesterday as he outlined the things he "has done" in the past three months.

There is an irreducible amount of dust and dirt in the city "and we can only hope to reduce air pollution that is in excess of this irreducible minimum, Hitchcock explained in answer to complaints filed by James Alfred Avirett, local attorney.

"Avirett will never have the relief from smoke and dirt that he expects as long as he resides in the locality of the PE River plant," Hitchcock declared.

In a letter read at the municipal meeting yesterday answering Avirett, Hitchcock stated, "I wish to report that I have made a careful investigation of conditions that caused this complaint.

Normal Operation

"The River Plant, at this specified time was under normal operation. The noon-day hour is when the electric load at the plant is at its minimum, it reduces the load from normal XXX this period is the time when the 'Cottrell Units' are wrapped and release for a short period the fly-ash.

"During this interval when the boilers are under low-pressure the tendency for the released fly-ash to settle near the plant area is at its best."

The smoke engineer said as yet he has no method to measure smoke and dirt emitted by trains and industry, but explained, "I have completed tentative locations for the city's Air Pollution Stations. It will take six months before a standard can be set and a quantitative analysis for measure maintained as a basis to establish a violation."

It is a matter of record that 33 per cent of the fly ash emitted by the PE plant three months ago has been eliminated, Hitchcock said, adding that electric precipitators have already been installed on two of the six stacks at the River Plant.

Equipment is available for the remaining four stacks, Hitchcock said, and would have been in operation by now, but the local plant was called upon for maximum production when the Williamsburg, Pa., plant developed boiler trouble. Work will be completed in about two weeks, he added.

Due To Human Element

Locomotives operating in this vicinity on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad are also about 80 per cent equipped with over fire jet installation, the smoke engineer declared, but explained the condition now is a result of the human element which operates the trains.

Such a condition cannot be corrected until the men can be educated through hearings, and possibly penalties, which will be conducted shortly under the City ordinance, he declared.

"I am against heavy fines but prefer the longer—but sure—method

Keyser Restaurant Owner Drowns In Six-Inch Pool

Missing From Home For Three Days

A 28-year-old Keyser, W. Va., restaurant owner was found drowned in a six inch pool of water between a concrete wall foundation and a dirt bank of the Plymouth building on South Davis Street yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Keyser authorities reported.

William Paul Dawson, 297 West Piedmont Street, the victim, was propounced dead from drowning by Dr. Harry Coffman, Mineral County, W. Va., health officer, who set the time of death at 2 o'clock Sunday morning.

Claude Martin, Keyser chief of police, said Dawson's body was found wedged between the wall and bank by Harry Ellifritz and Robert Kane, construction workers who are erecting the Plymouth building.

Dawson, who was last seen when he left the home of his brother, Howard J. Dawson, 399 Wade Avenue, Saturday at midnight, was found face down in the pool of water that collected between the foundation wall and the excavation that was not yet filled in.

Chief Martin said it appeared Dawson started to his home after

Balloting Is Heavy At Celanese Plant

Officials of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, reported last night that yesterday's voting in the union security election came "up to expectations."

The heaviest voting came at 3 p. m. as the shift change whistle gave the signal for a 50-yard dash to the polls. The union said workers were lined up from the main gate to the union booth after that race. Some buses were held up 15 minutes to allow workers to vote.

The 27 guardsmen, representing about half of the Oakland company, were picked up yesterday in Garrett County and brought here to answer to charges of being absent without leave from the encampment.

Brig. Gen. William C. Purnell said the board released the six and permitted them to return home because it was determined that camp service would work a "personal or business hardship" on them.

He said none of the 27 will be punished for failing to report to duty when the 29th division went into camp here Saturday.

Resigns Commission

However, the Oakland commander of the company, First Lt. Stuart F. Hamill, Jr., an attorney, resigned his commission because of a "misunderstanding" with General Purnell, commander of the Maryland units in the division.

Hamill said the M.P.s came into Oakland "like storm troopers" and "hauled the boys right out of their homes and their work, loaded them on trucks and took them off to camp."

Wilbur Close, editor of the Oakland Democrat said "We thought it was pretty high handed. We think it was uncalled for. We have no complaint against the Military Police or their captain," he said. "They were all very courteous."

Hamill said that "we understood from the beginning that a man didn't have to go to camp if he had a good legal excuse."

"Yesterday," he said, "they told me 60 per cent of the men had to be in camp if the company was to be paid.

"If they'd gone into that with me when the company was organized I could have told them that we wouldn't have 60 per cent in camp," Hamill said.

Didn't Want Job

Hamill said he hadn't wanted to take the job of commanding the company which, is part of the 121st Engineer Battalion.

"I'm a lawyer," he said. "I told them I didn't know anything about egnineering. They said take it on a temporary basis. Well, I didn't want to go back into the Army and I'm sure out now."

General Purnell said he received Hamill's resignation today and had forwarded it to General Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of the guard.

General Reckord issued a statement that "I am very definitely surprised at the failure of Lieutenant Hamill and approximately 50 per cent of the members of his x x x company to realize their responsibility as members of the National Guard."

He added that "I believe this entire incident can be charged to the inexperience of Lieutenant Hamill and his failure to realize the full responsibility of his obligation.

Board Of Education Approves Location Of Teachers College

BALTIMORE, Aug. 2 (AP)—The State Board of Education today adopted a resolution approving an extensive program of improvement at Maryland's four teacher training institutions and advocated keeping the Frostburg State Teachers College at its present site.

The action was in conflict with a recommendation of the Marbury Commission, which suggested "prompt abandonment" of the Frostburg facility.

The board voted "an expression of confidence in the permanency" of Frostburg "and in the necessity for its location on the present site."

Board Member Wendell D. Allen said he did not believe there was a "Chinaman's chance" that the Marbury Commission recommendation would go through.

The capital improvement program, based on present and prospective needs, proposes erection of a number of new buildings at Frostburg, Towson, Salisbury and Bowie, in addition with land purchased at all except the latter.

No specific priorities were assigned to the projects by the investigators and no cost estimates were included.

The board agreed that priorities should be worked out in co-operation with the State Planning Commission and the State's chief engineer, with the assistance of a full time co-ordinator to be employed for the purpose.
